UK WON'T CHANGE IMMIGRATION PLAN FOR TRADE DEAL WITH INDIA

Britain has no plans to change its approach to reducing net migration in order to help secure a free trade deal with India, the spokesperson for Prime Minister Rishi Sunak said on Thursday. There is growing optimism that a free trade deal could be concluded this year, as both sides agree on the broad contours of the pact. Rishi Sunak told his ministers that he would only agree an approach that worked for the whole of Britain.

Modi moots 12-point plan to scale up ASEAN synergy

Offers to share digital public infra stack; seeks better connectivity

YESHI SELI @ New Delhi

Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Thursday proposed a 12-point plan to expand cooperation between India and the 10-nation ASEAN (Association of Southeast Asian Nations), which included multi-modal connectivity, trade and digital infrastructure.

Creating an economic corridor to link South East Asia, India, West Asia and Europe, and offering to share India's digital public infrastructure stack with ASEAN partners were among Modi's basket of proposals in his address at the annual ASEAN-India summit at Jakarta in Indonesia.

A joint statement on maritime cooperation said the two sides agreed to deepen their strategic partnership with concrete actions to implement the ASEAN-India partnership for peace, progress and shared prosperity. It said the ASEAN supports India's initiatives for seamless connectivity in the Indo-Pacific and cooperation in a wide array of areas.

Modi, in his address, said ASEAN is the central pillar of India's Act East Policy. "Our history and geography connect India and ASEAN. Along with shared values, regional unity, peace, prosperity and belief in a multipolar world also binds us together,'' he said.

A maritime cooperation parternership was agreed upon, which recognised the importance of oceans and seas as the key factors in driving growth. Coming in the wake of China's increasing assertiveness in the South China Sea, the reference was significant.

Timor-Leste was an observer at this meeting. An Indian Embassy will be opened in Dili, Timor-Leste.

Later, Modi attended the East Asia Summit in. "India fully supports the ASEAN outlook on the Indo-Pacific. This underscores the significance of the 'East Asia Summit' as a crucial platform for implementing the Indo-Pacific Oceans Initiative," he said.

School in dock over religious slur, assault on minor boys

MOHAMMED YACOOB @Bengaluru

A government residential school in Hassan is in the dock over an alleged religious slur terming minority community students as "beef eaters" and illegally detaining five minor boys from class 10 in a room on the campus.

The Karnataka State Commission for Protection of Child Rights (KSCPCR) has sought a report within a week from the police and officials of the Education and Social Welfare Department on the alleged incident that took place at Morarji Desai Residential School at Ramasagara village in Arasikere taluk of Hassan district on September 2.

Syed Ashraf, social activist and former political secretary to erstwhile prime minister VP Singh, who first got the information about the incident and took it up with the commission, said, "Mahantesh, the school teacher (who taught social science), assaulted the minors with electric cables. He made casteist remarks saying 'you are beef-consuming people'. He also illegally detained five boys in a room. Still no action was taken. Hence, we approached the commission chairman."

He alleged that the victims and their family members have been pressured to remain silent on the issue and withdraw the case.

Police filed an FIR the day after parents of one of the minor boys, who was allegedly assaulted, filed a complaint the day after the incident.

The commission swung into action after the community leaders approached it seeking stern and expeditious action against Mahantesh. He has since gone on leave.

"The minority community students are coming to school, and it is our duty to ensure their educational rights are protected. The commission will recommend strict action if the teacher is found guilty," Naganna Gowda, commission chairman, told TNIE. P7

G20 SUMMIT

World leaders fly in, Biden-Modi meet today

YESHI SELI @ New Delhi

US President Joe Biden will hit the ground running as he is set to directly proceed for a bilateral meeting with Prime Minister Narendra Modi upon his arrival in Delhi on Friday. "President Biden is very excited about the important initiatives that he would be championing at the G20," said John Kirby, White House National Security Council Coordinator for Strategic Communication, in Washington, prior to the US president's departure.

Modi-Biden talks will be a follow-up of the discussion the two leaders had in June during the Indian PM's US visit. "One of the main goals of the US at the G20 would be to "help reshape and scale up multilateral development banks like the IMF, like the World Bank", Kirby said.

This is Biden's first visit to India as US president. "We're grateful for PM Modi's leadership during India's presidency of the G20, and the President is certainly looking forward to his bilateral meeting with the prime minister shortly after his arrival in New Delhi. He's also looking forward to warmly welcoming the African Union as a permanent member of the G20, the newest permanent member," Kirby added.

The summit will be held on Saturday and Sunday. While many leaders including British PM Rishi Sunak and Australian PM Anthony Albanese will arrive on Friday, French prez Emmanuel Macron will reach on Saturday. P11

Shah Rukh's 'Jawan' takes control of the box-office

JAYABHUVANESHWARI B

JAWAN, the much-hyped Shah Rukh Khan-Atlee film, hit screens on Thursday. This is the first time SRK is working with the Tamil director known for films like Theri, Mersal, and Bigil, and for this reason, theatre owners in Tamil Nadu are gung-ho about its prospects. "People are receiving this Hindi film with as much love as they would show a Tamil film," says Nikilesh Surya, owner of Rohini Theatre, Chennai, who shares that the predominantly Tamil cast and crew help too.

"This is by far the biggest release for a Bollywood film in Kerala and Tamil Nadu," claims Krishnamoorthy, executive producer of Sree Gokulam Movies, who are foraying into the Tamil film industry by distributing Jawan. Together in both states, the Hindi and Tamil versions have been released in a total of 1,001 screens (718 centres). This includes around 450 centres in Tamil Nadu and 270 centres in Kerala.

While the film is being released in Hindi, Tamil, and Telugu in Tamil Nadu, it's believed that the Tamil version will contribute the most business.

"Tamil audiences have always chosen to watch dubbed versions of English and Hindi films. So, the Tamil version should make 70 per cent of all business," says Tirupur Subramaniam, veteran film distributor and the head of Tamil Nadu's Theatre Owners Association. He adds, "Around 450 screens have been allocated for the Tamil version of Jawan, while around 100 screens, mostly multiplexes, have been allotted for the Hindi version." P7

Sanatana is ancient dharma of land: Seer

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Mysuru

PONTIFF of Sri Adichunchanagiri Mahasamsthana Mutt Nirmalanandanatha Mahaswamiji on Thursday said that sanathana dharma is nothing but the ancient dharma of the land and one who is in a responsible position or power must exercise caution while issuing statements on such matters.

He was responding to Tamil Nadu minister Udayanidhi Stalin's controversial remarks against sanatana dharma. Quoting the "Yada Yada Hi Dharmasya" verse, Nirmalanandanatha Swamiji said those in responsible positions must refrain from making such remarks.

"Sanatana means ancient. If we look at the origin of religions, Islam has a history of over 1,600 years, Christianity over 2,000 years and Buddhism and Jainism of more than 2,500 years. Lord Krishna referred to dharma even in the Mahabharata and there are many references to it," he said.

On the row over use of Bharat instead of India, the seer referred to the use of "Government of India" and "Bharatha Sarkara" and avoided taking further questions on it. The seer said that a new branch of the mutt, BGS cultural bhavan and a free hostel will be inaugurated on September 10 and 11. MORE: P6

City may see disruption in gas supply: GAIL

Agency to carry out urgent maintenance works; tells industrial, commercial units to store alternative sources of fuel

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

GAIL Gas Limited on Thursday stated that there may be a disruption in supply of domestic, commercial and industrial gas and CNG from September 7-10 in Bengaluru urban and rural areas in view of urgent maintenance works.

An official from GAIL Gas told The New Indian Express that they have appealed to the people to use gas as less as possible. The inconvenience is because of the work to be taken up to repair the damaged Dabhol-Bengaluru gas pipeline at Bidadi near Bengaluru. Such works were undertaken by the company in January earlier.

According to officials from the company, there are around one lakh households using piped gas in the city. Besides, there are over 1,000 commercial units using gas from GAIL.

The company also supplies CNG to many outlets in the city. On a daily basis, five lakh standard cubic metres of gas is supplied to Bengaluru, the officials said. "To ensure that there is no crisis, we have stocked around 15 lakh standard cubic metres of gas. Though steps have been taken to maintain proper supply to homes, there could be a disruption because of the maintenance work. Priority is being given to domestic supply. Industrial and commercial units have been told to store alternative sources of fuel. Since it's the weekend, the demand at CNG outlets will be less," said a source from GAIL.

The source said, "An organisation installing solar panels damaged the gas pipeline at Bidadi two months ago. We immediately undertook temporary maintenance work to repair the cracks. But now a thorough repair is needed. Already, a 40-km area around the spot, where the pipeline has been damaged, has been evacuated. A four-day gas back-up has been kept ready for supply. Hence, it is advisable to reduce the use of gas in the next four days."

Permission must for Ganesha pandals

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

CITY Police Commissioner B Dayananda on Thursday appealed to the people to obtain permission from the departments concerned before installing Ganesha pandals in public places.

He was speaking at a meeting of officials from various departments and religious heads on the peaceful celebration of Ganesh Chaturthi and Eid Milad in the city.

Chief Commissioner of BBMP Tushar Girinath said to ensure that the festivals are celebrated in a peaceful manner, single-window centres will be set up in 63 subdivisions with representatives from BBMP, Bescom and the Fire and Emergency Services Department to issue permits for installation of Ganesha idols.

"Install CCTV cameras at pandals where more people gather. Before the festival, residents' welfare associations and religious heads should hold meetings to ensure peace in their respective areas," the commissioner said.

BBMP officials referred to the high court order banning banners and posters and appealed to the people to abide by it while erecting pandals. They also appealed to the people to use eco-friendly Ganesha idols to prevent pollution of lakes in the city.

"Temporary tanks will be set up in all wards for immersion of idols," a top official from BBMP said.

To immerse large idols, cranes will be made available. Additional civic staff will be deployed at places where idols will be immersed, he said.

4K dengue cases this year, BBMP on alert

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

WITH seven suspected dengue deaths and 4,926 cases since January in Bengaluru city, the Bruhat Bengaluru Mahanagara Palike (BBMP) is on high alert. Health Minister Dinesh Gundu Rao, who chaired a meeting with BBMP Chief Commissioner Tushar Girinath and BBMP Special Commissioner Health Dr KV Thrilok Chandra and Chief Health Officer Dr Balasundar, said that dengue cases spiked due to the monsoon.

Addressing the media after the meeting, the minister said that he has instructed the officials concerned to test the samples collected at all clinics and primary health centres (PHCs).

"Seven suspected deaths were reported of which three are confirmed and report of four cases is awaited. Cases have spiked. But it is not alarming and we will bring it down through various preventive measures like fumigation," Rao added.

As testing at clinics required funds and staff, the minister said the issue of shortage of auxiliary nurse midwife and male health workers will be addressed. "Workers are paid Rs 12,000 each month. Hence many do not take up the job. We will give an additional Rs 6,000 and hire them," Rao added.

App to track diseases

To track and predict the onset and spread of communicable diseases, an app will be launched in the city on Friday. Minister Dinesh Gundu Rao said that the Artificial and Robotics Technology Park (ARTPARK), IISc, has been working on the app which will give predictive analysis of communicable diseases at least four weeks in advance. The app will also be used to monitor the health condition of health workers, spread of communicable diseases and track test reports.

Rao said that Bengaluru city should be be seen as a separate district for its vast area, population and a health unit will be set up. "A discussion with the deputy chief minister and health department officials will be convened," he said.

Rao said 60 new Namma Clinics will come up and provision for its operation for 12 hours will be done. From 8am to 4pm lab technicians will be available and from noon to 8 pm, doctors will be there at Namma Clinics. Government order will be issued in this regard shortly, he added.

Legislative Assembly Committee gives BDA 14 months to complete NPKL works

In a breather for the Bangalore Development Authority, the Karnataka Legislative Assembly Committee on Thursday gave it a 14-month period to complete all works in the Nadaprabhu Kempegowda Layout. Drones to monitor forests, survey lands, says minister

Bengaluru: To make the utmost use of technology and help improve conservation efforts, Forest, Environment and Ecology Minister Eshwar Khandre on Thursday said drones will be used not just for surveillance, but also for conservation and survey. Speaking at the Drones for Sustainability Summit-2023 organised by the Forest Department in Bengaluru, Khandre said drone technology will be helpful in monitoring activities in protected areas. He said since it is difficult for forest staffers to enter many forest patches and keep a watch, drones will be useful there. "Vehicles hinder the movement of animals. Drones can also be a useful tool in curbing poaching and wildlife crimes," he added. ENS

Talks fail, transporters firm on bandh

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

TALKS between the state government and members of the Federation of Karnataka State Private Transport Associations, who have called for a Bengaluru bandh on September 11, didn't yield any results. While Transport Minister Ramalinga Reddy tried to persuade the federation to withdraw the bandh on Thursday, they are firm in not withdrawing it until they receive a written assurance from the government of fulfilling their promise.

The federation, which has an affiliate of 32 private buses, cabs and auto unions, has been urging the state government to compensate for the alleged losses incurred after the roll out of the Shakti scheme, which has been offering free travel to women in non-premium government buses across the state.

Federation members said they were invited for talks with the transport minister through Transport Commissioner A M Yogeesh but nothing concrete came out of the meeting.

Nataraj Sharma, nominated president of the federation, said, "While the federation has placed various demands to be fulfilled, our major demand is compensation for the loss of revenue due to the Shakti scheme. However, there was no commitment from the transport minister on it. We have made it clear that the bandh will not be withdrawn until the government commits to fulfilling the compensation demand in writing."

Sharma said the minister has sought time till Friday to discuss on the compensation part with the transport commissioner. Meanwhile, the federation members are engaged in spreading wide awareness for their Bengaluru bandh by distributing pamphlets and pasting posters on the private buses and autos going across the state.

Reddy holds meeting

Ramalinga Reddy also held a meeting with the officials of the Transport Department, Bengaluru Metropolitan Transport Corporation (BMTC), Karnataka State Road Transport Corporation (KSRTC) and senior officials of the police department and discussed the measures to be taken to resolve the problems that may arise to the general public because of the bandh called by the federation. He asked officials of the state bus corporations to deploy additional buses on routes dominated by private buses, autos and cabs.

Plaint against official

The federation lodged a complaint with the transport commissioner demanding action against Additional Transport Commissioner Hemanth Kumar, alleging that he had dropped the names of the 32 affiliate unions for the meeting on August 31.

ARIES
(Mar 21 - Apr. 20)
Your priority now ought to be to apply a new broom to social affairs and also to anything at work that requires collaboration. There is still precious little that you can do to settle a financial question but, then, is it really important? Perhaps it's not as pressing as people think.

TAURUS
(Apr. 21 - May 21)
Over the next few days disturbing planetary aspects will fade, allowing you to bring personal relationships back to earth. Partners still have a few tricks left, but it should all be water off a duck's back to you. By which I mean that you shouldn't really worry about trivial problems and minor insults.

GEMINI
(May 22 - June 21)
If you grumble or complain about working conditions, or about colleagues' behaviour, you will do no more than waste your time. Every precious moment should be spent completing your own tasks and achieving your personal ambitions. And then there's your private life to think about!

CANCER
(June 22 - July 23)
What you experience now could bring the culmination of a long series of disputes, and you may do your bit by pointing out the ethical dimension. In other words, what is right is right for all, not just for a few selfish individuals. The only problem is in getting everyone to agree.

LEO
(July 24 - Aug. 23)
At least everything is now open and above board. There can be few people who do not have at least some idea of what has been going on, and probably everyone has an opinion as to what should be done. You can always slip away and let them slug it out!

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 - Sept. 23)
You have every right to be full of yourself, but remember one thing today: you really must give partners a fair hearing. It's not just a question of listening - you should actually hear and understand what their wise words really mean. And if there's anything that's not clear, ask them to say it again!

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 - Oct. 23)
For the fourth day running everything hangs on money. Questions like what you can afford, or indeed, what you should buy, will dominate your actions. The fact that such issues are so emotionally-loaded makes the answers rather difficult and somewhat elusive.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 - Nov. 22)
What you learn or discover in a strange or totally unexpected way will enable you to settle quite a number of scores. You must concentrate on improvements in relationships with children and younger relations for, as you know well enough, the future lies with them.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 - Dec. 22)
What really matters is that after all the emotional dramas and upsets, you will realise the importance of putting home and family happiness above all else. You may still, though, be troubled by secret worries. Perhaps it's time to talk to someone you can trust.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)
Partners may be less uptight and more willing to listen today. Teamwork, social and group activities seem to be incredibly competitive at the moment, with people increasingly divided into winners and losers. Yet it's not coming top that matters, but doing your best.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 - Feb. 19)
You will soon decide to bring one cycle to a close and finally sever costly ties. The important consideration at work is to acquire responsibilities which enable you to serve your community, to feel that you're doing your best for the whole planet.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 - Mar 20)
This is likely to be a rather challenging time, but it is almost certainly you who is laying down the ground rules. If you wish, you may even move the goal-posts, catching others out in the process! It's up to them to be more flexible, just for a change.

Carpenter suffers spinal cord injury as gate collapses at KIA

S LALITHA @ Bengaluru

A 32-year-old construction worker suffered a grievous spinal cord injury after a gate collapsed on him on the premises of Kempegowda International Airport on August 26.

The victim, Nikilesh Singh, a carpenter from Uttar Pradesh, was working at a project site of Taj Hotel when the incident took place.

He works for Ashish Interbuild Private Limited, one of the firms executing the project work.

He filed a police complaint a day later against the security guard on duty at the project site for the injury he suffered.

According to the FIR, Singh was passing through Phase 2 gate at the project site along with his colleague Pradeep Yadav to collect some hardware material.

"The guard seated there pressed a button to close the hydraulic barrier installed on the gate, which fell on Singh's back who was passing through and rendered him unconscious."

Singh was admitted to Aster Hospital at Sahakar Nagar where he underwent multiple surgeries.

There is a possibility that Singh might never be able to walk again, said a source.

The FIR under Section 388 of IPC (Grievous hurt to a person) sought legal action against the security guard at the project site for carelessness which endangered his life.

A source claimed that Singh had unauthorisedly entered the spot which was off-limits for all.

A Taj Hotel spokesperson refused to comment on the issue. Airport operator, Bangalore International Airport Limited, too did not comment.

Man, friend stop car asking lift, tortured, robbed

PRAVEEN KUMAR @ Bengaluru

A 40-year-old cooking contractor and his friend from Chitradurga paid a heavy price for stopping a car around 3.30am Thursday, for a drop, as they couldn't find any mode of transport.

The victims were unaware that the three men in the car were robbers. The miscreants attacked them with knives and robbed them of their cash and jewellery. They also forced the victims to make UPI transactions. The accused, who kept the victims for nearly 25 minutes, pushed them out near Ullal Main Road and sped away in the dark. The victims had come to the city for a cooking contract. Nagyanayaka and Manju Nayaka had come to the city from Bharamasagara in Chitradurga. They got down from the bus at Goraguntepalya junction around 3.15am on Saturday and boarded the car around 3.30am.

"We stopped the car at Goraguntepalya as we wanted to go to Nayandahalli. After passing Sumanahalli bridge, the accused drove left and parked on the side of the flyover. They attacked us and took away our cash and gold. Then they drove towards University campus, Papareddypalya, and stopped the car near a temple off Ullal Main Road and made us jump out of the car. We then ran towards the main road and saw a hospital from where we sought help and called the police. Jnanabharathi police came to the spot. On Tuesday, we got a call from the police saying that the accused have been arrested," P Nagyanayaka, the complainant, told TNIE. The victims underwent treatment at the same hospital where they sought help.

"All the three accused are arrested. They were on a robbing spree since Saturday and were arrested at Malagala near Nagarbhavi by the Kamakshipalya police on Monday. Two of the accused are identified as Girish and Naveen," said an officer.

HC permits KSPCB head to take up routine activities

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

THE Karnataka High Court on Thursday permitted Karnataka State Pollution Control Board (KSPCB) chairman Dr Shantha A Thimmaiah to conduct its activity in a limited sphere on a day-to-day basis, and not take any policy decision till the next date of hearing. The court, however, said the parties can approach it if any urgent policy decision is required to be taken.

A division bench of Chief Justice Prasanna B Varale and Justice Krishna S Dixit passed the interim order, while staying the government notification dated August 31, clarifying that the tenure of Shantha Thimmaiah as KSPCB chairman stands completed as on March 4, 2022. Hearing the petition filed by Thimmaiah challenging the notification, the court said that it required a detailed hearing and granting a stay should not be treated as approval for the appointment.

A division bench of Chief Justice Prasanna B Varale and Justice MGS Kamal passed the order after hearing the arguments of the counsel of the petitioner Shantha Thimmaiah and submission made by Advocate-General Shashikiran Shetty in support of the corrigendum issued as a notification by the state government.

The notification stated that there was an error in mentioning the date of completion of his tenure as November 14, 2024, instead of March 4, 2022, in the earlier notification issued for the appointment of Shantha Thimmaiah. Hence, the appointment of Shantha stands rectified and his tenure as chairman stands completed as on March 4, 2022.

Techie claims to be victim of love jihad, seeks police help

ENS @ Bengaluru

A software professional took to social media, claiming to be a victim of love jihad by a person from Kashmir. In her posts on X, she sought help from city police, stating that she was in danger.

Following this, city police found that she was staying in Bellandur police jurisdiction, following which Bellandur police traced her address and assured of action if she files a police complaint. She told the police that she had posted on social media on the advice of an advocate. She appeared before Bellandur police on Thursday.

Additional Commissioner of Police (East) Raman Gupta told TNIE, "The woman, claiming to be a software engineer, is from Bengaluru. She had tweeted that she was a victim of love jihad. The incident is said to have happened around five to six years ago. We will have to investigate the delay in bringing the matter to the notice of the city police. Due investigation will give clarity about the case."

● GOP doesn't want to be tagged as 'anti-Hindu' ● BJP questions Cong's approach

DEVARAJ B HIREHALLI @ Bengaluru

WITH the Congress high command tactfully abstaining from reacting to Tamil Nadu Chief Minister M K Stalin's son Udhayanidhi's statement likening Sanatana Dharma to disease, and that it should be eradicated, Congress leaders in Karnataka have followed suit.

Though the DMK is part of the I.N.D.I.A bloc of 26 political parties, Home Minister Dr G Parameshwara and RDPR Minister Priyank Kharge have clarified that they cannot defend Udhayanidhi's statement.

The party high command has reportedly advised Congress leaders to abstain from comment, as the party does not want to be branded "anti-Hindu" in the run-up to the 2024 LS polls. Sources said the party does not want to give the BJP an issue which it can milk for votes, having set itself a target of winning 20 of 28 Lok Sabha seats.

"What controversy and who sparked it? Do you know the Supreme Court's judgment that Hinduism is a way of life? Are we greater than the SC? The Tamil Nadu's minister statement is his personal opinion, and I will not endorse it," Parameshwara said, when asked whether the high command had issued instructions to this effect.

"Why should I defend Udhayanidhi's statement? I will not impose any religion on any body... the Indian Constitution is my religion," remarked Priyank. In fact, he had earlier stated that "any religion that does not promote equality or give equal rights or treat you like humans is not a religion, it is as good as a disease..."

"The question remains as to when Hindu religion took birth and who gave birth to it. Buddhism was born in India. Jainism has its roots in India. Islam and Christianity came from foreign countries. If you analyse, the summary of all these (religions) is to do good for mankind," he had stated, sparking off a controversy. He clarified that he had said nothing wrong about Hinduism.

"KPCC president and DyCM D K Shivakumar is known for soft Hindutva as he is a theist. He has claimed he is a proud Hindu," remarked a Congress leader, who said the party wants to maintain its distance from controversial statements. "Over 50 per cent of the electorate is women, most of them theists practising either Hindu or Sanatana religion, knowingly or unknowingly. They are beneficiaries of the five guarantee schemes. Hence, it doesn't want to go against their faith," remarked another leader.

CM tells Modi to withdraw his remarks

BENGALURU: Chief Minister Siddaramaiah on Thursday said Prime Minister Narendra Modi's call to "give a befitting reply" to Tamil Nadu minister Udhayanidhi Stalin's statement on Sanatana Dharma is provocative and unconstitutional. He demanded the PM to withdraw the statement. "If someone has committed a mistake, action must be taken against them as per the law. Instead, prompting people to respond appropriately becomes a call to take the law into their own hands. Even if the Prime Minister does this, it is a crime," the CM stated, taking to a social media platform. Siddaramaiah said that Modi seems to have forgotten that he is the Prime Minister of 140 crore people in the country. It is a worrisome development that many leaders of his party and organisation are calling for violence after the PM's statements, the CM said. The CM claimed that the then prime minister Atal Bihari Vajpayee himself had expressed displeasure with Narendra Modi's behaviour as the chief minister during the Gujarat riots and had called him to follow "Raj Dharma". "On this occasion, I would like to remind Modi of late Vajpayee's words of wisdom," the CM stated. ENS

Cong wants to save alliance, alleges Joshi

ENS @ Hubballi

THE compulsion of safeguarding the I.N.D.I.A alliance prompted Congress to refrain from denouncing the remark against Sanatana Dharma by Tamil Nadu minister Udhayanidhi Stalin, said Union Minister for Parliamentary Affairs, Coal and Mines Pralhad Joshi.

Lashing out at the Congress, Joshi told reporters here on Thursday that the young DMK leader's remark should not be taken lightly because it was made in a national conference focused on "eradicating Sanatana Dharma". The Grand Old Party, which is an anchor of the new alliance, was still hesitant to condemn this act of Udhayanidhi, he stated. Reiterating what PM Narendra Modi called the Opposition's alliance as "Ghamandiya Ghatabandhan" (an alliance of arrogance), the Union minister said the Congress has kept mum just to protect its political interests and the alliance. Also, its (Congress) utterance on treating all religions equally is just a grandstanding exercise, while minister Priyank Kharge's support to the DMK leader showed his party's true colours, he added.

THE Karnataka Pradesh Congress Committee commemorated the first anniversary of the Bharat Jodo Yatra, which was led by Congress MP Rahul Gandhi from Kanniyakumari to Kashmir, by taking out a rally in Ramanagara on Thursday evening with much fanfare.

Throughout the rally, Siddaramaiah showed great enthusiasm with his fans receiving him with huge garlands. Earlier, he posted a series of comments on X, besides tagging the pictures and video clippings of the yatra when it passed through the state. One of the posts suggested that the country needs to wage a second freedom struggle.

"This is not the time for us all to sit on the raft. We all have to respond to the call to save the country. To save the unity and integrity of the country, to prevent the looting of the country's wealth, to protect the respect of the Constitution, to save the India built by our elders through sacrifices, a second freedom struggle has to be waged. This struggle should be inspired by the struggle of Mahatma Gandhi, Babasaheb Ambedkar, Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, Maulana Abul Kalam Azad, Vallabhbhai Patel, Indira Gandhi, and Rajiv Gandhi. Come on, let's advance under the leadership of Rahul Gandhi, join hands and get stronger for the struggle. Let's push back the breakers and engage in building. Let's build a new Bharat including a new Karnataka," he elaborated in one of his posts.

When Siddaramaiah and Deputy Chief Minister DK Shivakumar took part in a padayatra and roadshow over a 3.5-km stretch between Mini Vidhana Soudha and Aijooru area of the town, they displayed camaraderie akin to what they had shown during Rahul's yatra ahead of the May 10 Assembly polls.

Fisheries Minister Mankala Vaidya, and legislators from Ramanagara district, including Magadi MLA HC Balakrishna and MLC SC Ravi among others accompanied the CM and DyCM on the padayatra. Against the backdrop of the 2024 LS polls, which are hardly seven months away, the duo's show of unity is significant, amidst murmurs about differences between them in the three-month-old Congress regime in the state, observed political pundits.

JDS workers detained

Meanwhile, the police took a group of JDS workers and pro-Kannada activists into preventive custody as they showed signs of resisting the Bharat Jodo Yatra commemoration, a few minutes before the arrival of Siddaramaiah. They were staging a demonstration against the government.

Full list of drought-hit taluks soon

ENS @ Bengaluru

THE state government is taking more time to announce drought-hit taluks. The cabinet decided to wait for another week, as the ground survey is still going on in many taluks, and clarity is expected by next week after the complete report is submitted, Law Minister HK Patil said.

After the meeting, Patil said they had long discussions on the drought situation in Karnataka, but are waiting for the ground survey to be completed. "We will place the report before the cabinet," he said. He added that the CM Siddaramiah had written to the Centre to revise the parameters. Before 2016-17, a 20 per cent deficit in rainfall would be considered drought. This was changed to more than 60 per cent rain deficit, and three continuous weeks of a dry spell. "We have urged them to remove this parameter which is not scientific, and are hoping to get a positive response from the Centre," he said.

School uniform

The Karnataka Handloom Development Corporation had given a contract to private vendors to supply 134.05 lakh metres of cloth, worth Rs 96.92 crore. Patil said that 90 per cent of the uniforms are said to be sub-standard, though money was paid in full.

The Cabinet approved a probe into the sub-standard cloth supply for school uniforms.

Officers to face music for delayed chargesheets in atrocity cases: CM

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

CHIEF Minister Siddaramaiah on Thursday expressed displeasure over the delay in filing chargesheets in cases of caste-based atrocities and caste atrocity murders, even after 120 days, and a low rate of conviction. The SPs and Deputy Commissioners of Police will be held responsible for the delay and action will be taken against them, he warned.

The CM reviewed the status of the cases. In the last five years, out of 10,893 cases registered, chargesheets have not been filed within 120 days in 1,100 cases. He directed the state police chief to take action against investigating officers in the cases. The rate of conviction is just 3.44 per cent under the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes (Prevention of Atrocities) Act and it shows that the prosecution has failed, he said.

The state ranks 21st in the country in terms of punishment and the number of accused who escape is high, he said, and added that they will consider setting up fast-track courts where more cases are pending.

The delay in filing the chargesheet will not give justice to the victims and shows the indifference of the officers towards Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes, the CM said, warning that the government will not tolerate it.

The CM said if a chargesheet is not filed within 90 days under the Code of Criminal Procedure (CrPC) and under the SC/ST Prevention of Atrocities Act within 60 days, the accused can get bail easily. "Will those who get bail easily have a fear of the law?" the CM questioned.

Siddaramaiah said there is an opinion that the Karnataka Police is number one in the country, but under the Prevention of Atrocities Act, the rate of punishment is very low. "Does this mean that the police department has been negligent regarding SC/ST atrocity cases in the last five years?... our government will not tolerate this," he said.

The CM directed that a review meeting should be held every month regarding the progress of the investigation of these cases. Siddaramaiah said a circular will be issued to all MLAs, and district in-charge ministers to review the progress of atrocity cases in KDP meetings.

Police, Law, Social Welfare, and Revenue Departments should coordinate with each other to reduce the cases of atrocities against Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes and handle the registered cases effectively.

SC/ST Atrocities Prevention Act and Protection of Civil Rights Act have been implemented since it is not possible to provide proper justice to cases of atrocities under the Indian Penal Code, he said, adding that the government gives utmost importance to this issue.

Confusion over tweet on Gruha Lakshmi, minister clarifies

ENS @ Bengaluru

WOMEN and Child Welfare Minister Laxmi Hebbalkar had to convene a meeting at Vidhana Soudha Thursday after a tweet from the department that the state government has stopped Gruha Lakshmi registrations went viral and created confusion. Although the tweet was deleted after some time, the minister intervened and clarified that the registration process had not been stopped.

"In order to avoid confusion over the process of depositing Rs 2,000 in the accounts of the Gruha Lakshmi beneficiaries, the registration has been temporarily suspended and it will resume soon," the tweet from the Department of Women and Child Development read. "The new registrations will be halted until the first installment is transferred to the beneficiaries," it added.

"The tweet was a result of the mistake by those handling social media. Action has been taken against those responsible and notices issued," Laxmi said, adding that she was taken aback by the tweet and held a meeting of the department's top brass at Vidhana Soudha.

About 1.12 crore women heads of household have registered as against the target of 1.26 crore and the process was on till Wednesday night, she said. "The government has already released the Rs 2,000 each for 1.08 crore beneficiaries through Direct Benefit Transfer of which the amount has reached the bank accounts of 63 lakh. We are in constant touch with the authorities concerned. Money was supposed to be deposited into 25 lakh accounts per day from the banks but 10-15 lakh accounts have got the money. It will reach all the beneficiaries' accounts in four to five days," she assured.

Prajwal disqualified based on proof that I gave: Devarajegowda

HASSAN: BJP leader G Devarajegowda, who won a legal battle against former Hassan MP Prajwal Revanna, on Thursday claimed that Prajwal was disqualified based on the evidence submitted by him, and not because of Arkalgud MLA A Manju. Devarajegowda said he will continue the legal battle against Prajwal even in the Supreme Court. Devarajegowda, who was the BJP candidate for the Holenarasipur constituency in the Assembly elections this year, said he took up the issue of the alleged false affidavit not because of any personnel grudge against members of HD Revanna's family, but only to send the right message among the people, who were frustrated with the way Revanna and Prajwal conducted themselves in the district.

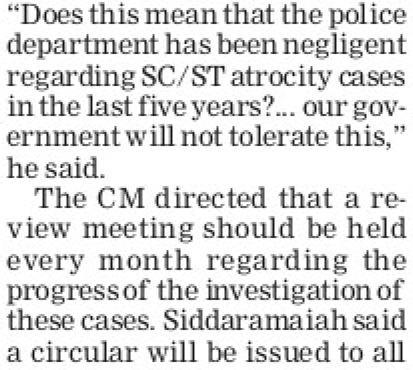
Rising rice price could throw spanner in Siddu's Anna Bhagya

BANSY KALAPPA @ Bengaluru

WHILE the Siddaramaiah government is determined to fulfil its promise of giving 10kg rice per head to below poverty line (BPL) families, there is a serious hitch. Food procurement experts pointed out twin problems -- international rice prices have zoomed, and the kharif crop yield could be unpredictable. Production is not looking promising, with floods in Punjab and Haryana and the monsoon failing in many parts of the country.

The other serious problem is that three rice surplus states -- Telangana, Odisha and Chhattisgarh – which are leading rice growing states, produce parboiled rice which may not be suitable for Karnataka's needs.

Although the government is claiming that the rice crop expected later this year will be good, food procurement experts say there could be a shortfall. Former FCI chairman DV Prasad said, "As against initial estimates of wheat production, after harvest, actual production is probably about 8-10 million tonnes less, compared to earlier estimates."



Agriculture experts differed on the cause. "The problem is the erratic monsoon. As in Karnataka, the monsoon has been playing truant across India, and experts say rice production would be lower than previous years' annual average. This is expected to push up prices. Rice is primarily a kharif crop and is dependent on rain. Lower output means higher prices, which would put pressure on Karnataka," they said.

Karnataka would have to choose between buying from the domestic or international market, and will be challenged as the price has been constantly on the rise.

The Congress government is looking for sources to procure rice, and experts say "there are serious obstacles and constraints in resolving the procurement issue. Although availability of rice might not be an issue, the cost would be significantly higher than the FCI price".

Cash transfer scheme

The state government has already introduced the cash transfer scheme in lieu of supply of rice to fulfil its commitment, and has the option of continuing this or substituting rice with millets, ragi or jowar.

But the state government appeared undaunted by the challenge. Food Minister K H Muniyappa told The New Indian Express, "We will keep our promise, give us a week's time, we will procure rice and deliver it."

FKCCI's Ramesh Chandra Lahoti said there is a 20 per cent jump in prices of all varieties of rice. "Idli-dosa rice was Rs 30 per kg last year, now it costs Rs 40 per kg in wholesale, Sona Mussoorie was Rs 40 last year and is now Rs 54."

ADITYA-L1 CLICKS A SELFIE, TAKES IMAGE OF EARTH, MOON

THE Indian Space Research Organisation (ISRO) on Thursday released a selfie taken by the camera onboard Aditya-L1 along with images of the Earth and Moon.

Developed indigenously by India, the spacecraft will travel 1.5 million km from the Earth and has already completed two Earth-bound manoeuvres.

Aditya-L1 will perform three more before the slingshot which will place the spacecraft in the intended Lagrange Point (L1) orbit. The mission will take 125 days to complete. According to scientists, the satellite is healthy. The second Earth-bound manoeuvre was performed successfully from ISTRAC (ISRO Telemetry, Tracking and Command Network) on September 5. The new orbit achieved was 282 km X 40,225 km. "The next manoeuvres (EBN#3) is scheduled for September 10, 2023, around 02:30 Hrs. IST," the space agency said in a statement. The first manoeuvre were performed on September 3, one day after the launch.

The Aditya-L1 mission was lifted off from Satish Dhawan Space Centre from Sriharikota on September 2, which is India's maiden mission to study the Sun. With seven payloads onboard, the major objective of the mission include observing the solar atmosphere, mainly the chromosphere and corona (the outermost layers of the Sun) and conducting studies to record the local environment from L1.

The satellite Aditya-L1 will travel only about 1% of the Earth-Sun distance.

Stalin defends son, blames BJP

There was no intention to offend any religion or religious beliefs, says TN CM

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Chennai

AMID a raging controversy over Tamil Nadu minister Udhayanidhi Stalin's comments about Sanatana Dharma, TN Chief Minister MK Stalin on Thursday said the former had only commented on the "inhuman principles" in Sanatana. Stalin further added that the BJP was trying to brand Udhayanidhi's comments as anti-Hindu and attempting to create divisions within the opposition alliance, I.N.D.I.A.

Unable to tolerate Udhayanidhi's stance against oppressive principles, pro-BJP forces have spread a false narrative alleging that he had given a call for genocide, Stalin said in a statement, questioning why Prime Minister Narendra Modi too is joining those targeting the TN minister when he could have easily verified the truth.

MK Stalin

"Udhayanidhi Stalin expressed his views on Sanatan principles that have been criticised for being discriminatory against Scheduled Castes, tribals, and women. There was no intention to offend any religion or religious beliefs," Stalin said. "BJP-supported social media has widely circulated falsehoods in northern states but it's important to note that the minister had never used the word 'genocide' in either Tamil or English," he said. Expressing dismay over union ministers' reluctance to verify facts, Stalin said, "Union ministers Amit Shah and Rajnath Singh were among those who shared the same falsehood and condemned Udhayanidhi. Even after his denial, these ministers did not retract their statements."

6 years on, JCB operator's wife to get death certificate

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

THE BBMP's inhuman act of dilly-dallying in issuing death certificate to the wife of an excavator operator who was washed away in heavy rain, while working in a storm-water drain, came to the fore with the Karnataka High Court extending a helping hand to his wife. The court directed the civic body to issue the death certificate.

The BBMP made her run from pillar to post for six years, rejecting her request for the death certificate, despite having disbursed Rs 10 lakh compensation for his death in 2017. Unable to tolerate the hardship, Saraswathi SP, 27, moved the high court, challenging the rejection of her request for a death certificate. BBMP had expressed the apprehension that if the petitioner's husband were to return alive, the death certificate would amount to a false certificate.

Rejecting the BBMP's apprehension, Justice Suraj Govindaraj said it was a baseless contention and a living person cannot be deprived of the benefit of a death certificate because of such an apprehension. It appears the corporation is clutching at straws to try and justify its inaction, he added. Saraswathi's husband was washed away in heavy rain on May 20, 2017, and BBMP had paid Rs 10 lakh compensation. A First Information Report (FIR) was registered at Mahalakshmipuram police station on March 27, 2018, with an endorsement that his body was not found. The woman then approached BBMP for the death certificate.

The BBMP contended that it has to follow the procedure prescribed in the Karnataka Registration of Births and Deaths Rules, 1999, for issue of certificate in Form No.4 for death occurring in hospital, and Form No.4A for death in other places. The victim's wife countered it by pleading that she was unable to obtain a certificate since the body was not available for a doctor to examine. The court said that Form No.4 would not be applicable since the death had not occurred in hospital. But this is a peculiar case as the body was not found, hence insistence of Form 4A for issuing certificate is illogical and unsustainable, causing grave injustice to the wife, the court observed.

"The petitioner is deprived of a death certificate for six years. The issuance of birth and death certificates has civil consequences, without a death certificate, the petitioner cannot take up activities which require a death certificate," the court noted.

Circulars should be passed as orders, say Devadasis & NGOs

PURAN CHOUDHARY
@ Bengaluru

DESPITE circular issued to various government departments, Devadasi system-affected mothers and their children face the brunt of compulsorily including father's or husband's names in all government applications and forms.

A group of Devadasi mothers and their children, including various other NGOs assembled in Bengaluru on Thursday to share their grievances and sought government intervention in the implementation of circulars issued on February 6 and pass them as orders to make it optional to add names.

The group also demanded a new survey on the number of Devadasis in Karnataka.

The group advocated that Devadasis' children should be allowed to pursue higher education free of cost, provide hostels, reservations for site and housing and apply for bank accounts.

"The last survey conducted on the number of Devadasis was back in 2007-2008. There is an urgent need for a new one as they are left out of so many benefits. Even after the abolition of the practice, the community still lives under social constraints and is considered taboo," said T Ramanjaneya, director, SNEHA NGO.

A booklet was also released by the Children of India Foundation for all the representatives of the community and NGOs working to uplift them.

> The circulars are small wins in a big battle for the community. Social acceptance is a big factor in completely doing away with this exploitative practice
>
> Vasudev Sharma, executive director, Child Rights Trust

Vasudev Sharma, executive director, Child Rights Trust said, "The booklet will help individuals to create awareness and go to government offices and banks and show a copy in order to remind officials that it is not compulsory."

He also spoke about how the survey is misrepresented in terms of numbers. He claimed that as per activists on the ground, 50,000-60,000 have been left out and the government needed to take corrective measures for the welfare of the community.

Sharma explained, "The circulars are small wins in a big battle for the community. Social acceptance is a big factor in completely doing away with this exploitative practice."

The 2007-2008 survey identified 46,660 Devadasis in Karnataka.

8-yr-old girl abducted, sexually assaulted in Kerala

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Kochi

BARELY one-and-a-half-months after the rape and murder of a five-year-old girl rocked Aluva, another minor migrant girl was abducted and sexually assaulted in the area in the early hours of Thursday. The eight-year-old girl was abducted while she was sleeping inside her house at Chathanpuram near Edayappuram in Aluva.

Police launched a massive hunt, and within hours nabbed the accused, Christal Raj aka Satheesh, 27, a native of Chenkal, Parassala, Thiruvananthapuram, from his hideout under the Marthanda Varma bridge. Though he attempted to escape by jumping into the Periyar, the police managed to catch him. Police said Christal is a habitual offender with several cases pending against him. He was released from the Viyyur Prison on bail in August.

According to police, the incident happened between midnight and 2am. The girl's father had gone to Thiruvananthapuram as part of his job. Her mother was sleeping inside a room, and she and her siblings sleeping on a cot in the hall of the small house. It is suspected that the accused opened the door from outside through the window and abducted the girl. He also stole a mobile phone. Around 2am, E S Sukumaran, a local resident, came out of the house after hearing the cries of the girl and saw her and the suspect. Suspicious, Sukumaran alerted his neighbours. However, the duo was gone by then. Sukumaran and his neighbours launched a search for the girl.

Later, the residents found the girl, with injuries in her private parts. After enquiring her whereabouts, they traced her home, located around 2km away, and took her there. It was only then that her family came to know that she had been abducted.

Litmus test for Atlee in north, SRK in south

THE craze for Jawan in Kerala is no less. Linto Davis, owner of Vanitha Vineetha Theatre, Ernakulam, says that they have added more shows than planned. The earliest show started at 6 am, and owing to the extraordinary response, we have already charted a late-night show at 11 pm."

"I have two theatres in Gaiety with a capacity of about 1,000 each and both are running full. In Maratha Mandir, we have 1,107 seats and it is houseful. For the weekend, advance bookings are almost full already," says Manoj Desai, Executive Director of G7 multiplex (Gaiety Galaxy), and Maratha Mandir Cinema, Mumbai. With Atlee at the helm of things, Tamil theatre owners are confident that Jawan will appeal to Tamil audiences as well. This is why Chennai's Mayajaal Multiplex is among the few multiplexes to allocate more shows to Tamil than Hindi. K Meenakshi Sundaram, Vice President of Mayajaal Multiplex, says, "We have allocated 30 shows in Tamil, 6 shows in Hindi and 3 shows in Telugu."

Jawan is a litmus test for Atlee in the North and doubles up as a test for Shah Rukh Khan in the South. Even his previous industry superhit, Pathaan, didn't really make inroads in Tamil. Nikilesh prefers to play the waiting game. "The bookings for the first weekend are guaranteed. After that, we need to wait and watch." With early trends suggesting ₹350 crore collection by this weekend, it'd be interesting to see the final collections of Jawan. It has cooked up quite a storm already. But will it overcome the Pathaan juggernaut?

As awareness wanes, only 845 take pledge to donate eyes

NAMRATA SINDWANI
@Bengaluru

WITH the 38th National Eye Donation Fortnight ending on Friday, the government-run organ donation portal, Jeevansarthakathe, has seen only 33 people from Bengaluru take the pledge this fortnight.

In all, 845 people in Karnataka accessed the government portal to pledge for eye donation. Though Bengaluru had few volunteers, there were a few other districts like Vijayapura (169), Haveri (179), Bidar (76) with a higher donor rate, statistics collected from Jeevansarthakanthe showed.

Dr Rohit Shetty, chairman, Narayana Nethralaya, explained that despite efforts being taken to create awareness about eye donation at the government and private level, the number of donors only see a temporary rise and subside again. Citing the example of famous Kannada actor Puneeth Rajkumar, he added that people are seen to get inspired by them coming forward to pledge for eye donations.

Despite organising online and offline awareness campaigns, talk shows and midnight marathons for educating people about the value of eye donation, Narayana saw a decrease in the number of pledges when compared to previous year's fortnight statistics. Post the death of Puneeth Rajkumar in 2021, people seemed more enthusiastic and around 1,000 plus people pledged for eye donation during the 2022 fortnight. This year, only around 500 people volunteered for it, Dr Shetty said.

Unsure about sustaining the same pace of donations throughout the year, Dr Shetty has suggested organising year-long campaigns to ensure that the message is running in the minds of people.

During this Eye Donation fortnight, Minto Eye Hospital also saw 854 people coming forward to pledge for eye donation. Dr Sujatha Rathod, medical director, Minto Eye Hospital, affiliated to Bangalore Medical College and Research Institute (BMCRI), said it is important to make dedicated efforts towards eye donation. Making eye donation forms available to all people in all outpatient departments (OPDs), and displaying QR codes at multiple spots throughout the year will ensure that people are regularly made aware of it.

EAST-WEST DIVIDE CAN HAMPER FINALISING COMMON G20 RESOLVE

China's announcement that President Xi Jinping would not attend the G20 Summit in New Delhi came as a dampener for India. Russian President Vladimir Putin, engaged in a war with Ukraine, had already communicated his inability to attend the Summit. Putin called Prime Minister Narendra Modi to inform him about his absence. But Xi showed no such courtesy. The Chinese government said Premier Li Qiang would lead its delegation.

The West has downplayed Xi's absence by describing it as an indication of the growing tension between India and China over border issues. But there is more to it than just the border dispute. Geopolitical issues are at play as well. After championing the cause of the Global South at the BRICS Summit, Russia and China aim to sharpen the discourse around their narrative that the East is rising and the West is on the decline. India's growing proximity with the Western bloc to counter China's geopolitical and economic hegemony may have contributed to Xi's decision to stay away from G20.

In a calibrated move, China upped the pressure on India and escalated the border dispute by issuing a "standard map" which showed Arunachal Pradesh, Aksai Chin and parts of Uttarakhand as Chinese territories. It has, however, simultaneously termed its relations with India as "generally stable", signalling that the trade relations between the two countries would remain unaffected by the border row and China's truncated presence at G20. The India-China bilateral trade has reached a record high of nearly $140 billion, and India's trade deficit crossed the $100-billion mark for the first time. While continuing to play the geopolitical game, China plans to keep its business relations with India intact.

The deep differences among the G20 countries are likely to make the finalisation of a unanimous G20 declaration difficult. Russian foreign minister Sergei Lavrov has announced that he will block the final declaration if it fails to reflect his country's position on Ukraine and other crucial global issues. Though the G20 is not a platform to discuss security issues, the West will surely insist on denouncing the Russian attack on Ukraine in the common communiqué. India has a challenging task at hand: to come up with a final draft that is acceptable to all.

CURIOUS TIMING OF I-T NOTICE TO TDP'S NAIDU

It would be an understatement to describe the show-cause notice issued to TDP chief N Chandrababu Naidu by the income tax department as unexpected. It is a bolt from the blue for the opposition party in Andhra Pradesh, coming as it does at a time when the party is pushing for an alliance with the BJP for the Assembly elections due next year. The tie-up is critical since, with the BJP, comes actor Pawan Kalyan's Jana Sena too. Furthermore, the TDP has never won an election under Naidu without an alliance partner. In short, any hiccup in the way of an electoral understanding could throw the TDP on the back foot.

In this context, the notice raises several questions. For the uninitiated, it pertains to tax proceedings against Naidu for an "undisclosed income" of ₹118 crore allegedly received as kickbacks from bogus sub-contracts issued to some infrastructure companies when he was in power between 2014 and 2019. The I-T department claims to have evidence and has brushed aside Naidu's objections. The amount in question isn't staggering enough, used as we are to think in terms of thousands of crores in various scams. And Naidu could challenge the notice as per the procedure. It will take an interesting turn if investigating agencies get into the picture.

The ruling YSRC is leaving no stone unturned to corner the TDP, which has maintained a deafening silence on the issue. The Jagan government also seems to have decided to let the state CID probe and urged the Enforcement Directorate to look into the matter. Politically, this is quite damaging for the TDP, but if it is any consolation, neither the BJP nor the Jana Sena has commented on the notice. TDP sympathisers within the BJP believe this could be more procedural than anything and appear confident of an electoral deal months ahead of the election. One must, however, remember that the state BJP is divided between Naidu sympathisers and true blue saffron leaders. The latter believe the notice could not have been slapped on Naidu without the approval of Central leaders.

A defensive Naidu blamed the YSRC, claiming he could even be jailed soon and vowed to continue to fight to dethrone Jagan. But it will take more than rhetoric to explain away the alleged undisclosed income. He needs to emerge from this with his credibility intact while cosying up to the BJP. That requires some skill.

QUICK TAKE

PLAY TIME NO STUDY TIME

The Gujarat High Court says it's illegal for parents to send toddlers under three to preschools. They should instead spend time in play schools before joining Class 1 when they are six. That's what the NEP recommends, and the SC iterated. Yet, preschools function nationwide, though the idea is not to impair children's mental health by cramming them with knowledge before they are ready. State governments must follow up on court orders to make children's foundation years playful by ensuring the conversion of preschools into childcare facilities where no formal education is taught. The timetable of activities must be available on the websites.

Each of our states has its own distinct political culture, many have parties unique to their regions, and all are, therefore, likely to throw up results that reflect these local particularities

WHY 'ONE NATION, ONE ELECTION' WON'T WORK

SHASHI THAROOR

Third-term Lok Sabha MP from Thiruvananthapuram and the Sahitya-Akademi winning author of 24 books, most recently Ambedkar: A Life

SOUMYADIP SINHA

Our editorial pages have been consumed with arguments for and against the government's proposal to adopt "One Nation, One Election". The decision to place former President Ram Nath Kovind at the head of a nine-member committee to study the proposal and the immediate resignation of the sole Opposition figure named to it, the Congress' Adhir Ranjan Chowdhury, has added to the hubbub. So also has the government's surprise decision to summon a Special Session of Parliament for five days this month without any indication of its agenda. Speculation is rife that one of the main purposes of this session might be to push through a constitutional amendment legislating "One Nation, One Election".

That seems unlikely since such a far-reaching change in our nation's electoral arrangements would require extensive consensus of all stakeholders, which has not been built, and multiple constitutional amendments. There is simply no time for the latter to be adopted by both houses of Parliament and then ratified by the minimum number of states required to come into effect. The fact that the Opposition INDIA alliance has come out bluntly against the proposal also means that the states ruled by non-BJP parties are unlikely to extend the support required to make the proposed amendments into law.

So what's all the fuss about? Hearing the government's side of the story is easy enough—the PM and several of his ministers have been discussing this idea for years. They argue that there are elections somewhere or the other in India every six months, that such frequent elections involve a colossal waste of time and expenditure, and that the code of conduct rules during elections paralyse governance for six to eight weeks each time. Putting all elections together once every five years would, therefore, be more efficient and more economical.

That's the "diagnosis", and it cannot be faulted within its own terms. (Except for one inconvenient fact: at first, simultaneous elections will be more expensive since you need to purchase and deploy far larger numbers of electronic voting machines.) But the bigger objection is that the "prescription" is arguably worse than the ailment itself. The assumptions behind the diagnosis are deeply flawed. They emerge from a unitary view of the Indian polity that privileges uniformity over unity and seems to assume that efficiency and economy are more important than democracy and diversity. They overlook that each of our states has its own distinct political culture, many have parties unique to their regions, and all are, therefore, likely to throw up results that reflect these local particularities. Our states move to their rhythms, very different from the Union drummers in Delhi.

Above all, ours is a parliamentary system in which governments survive only with a legislative majority. And when specific circumstances cause a government to lose its majority, it will fall—and if another majority cannot be found for someone else, the only democratic option available is to hold another election. To impose a long stint of President's rule instead, to conform to some arbitrary election calendar, would arguably be undemocratic and unconstitutional. And what happens if it is the Union government itself that falls for the same reason, as has happened several times already between 1979 and 1998?

The government's logic is incompatible with the vagaries of a parliamentary system in a large and diverse democracy. A single election calendar can only work in a presidential system where the survival of the executive is not dependent upon a legislative majority. That's not the system we have.

When the Constituent Assembly debated the merits of the specific system of democracy the country should adopt, advocates of the presidential system like Dr Ambedkar yielded to the majority who preferred the British Westminster model—from which, after all, the imperial rulers had sought to exclude Indians. Ambedkar himself rationalised that the choice placed accountability over stability: accountability to the elected legislature over the stability of tenure that a directly elected chief executive would enjoy. Having made that choice, we find ourselves today with the worst of both worlds—a parliamentary system being run presidentially by a chief executive who, far from being accountable to the legislature, uses it as a rubber stamp. "One Nation, One Election" would simply set the seal on this travesty of parliamentarianism by making stability more important than accountability to the people's representatives.

There is, however, an even larger problem. Elections have become the only real manifestation of democracy in our country. Democratic substance (as opposed to form or process) is largely absent in the work of the legislature. Most laws are drafted by the executive—in practice by the bureaucracy—and parliamentary input into their formulation and passage is minimal, with many bills passing after a few minutes of debate. The ruling party inevitably issues a whip to its members to ensure unimpeded passage of a bill. Since defiance of a whip attracts disqualification under the Anti-Defection Act, MPs loyally vote as their party directs. The accountability of the government to the people, through their elected representatives, suffers.

Worse, for those MPs who do not get into the government and realise the outcome of legislative votes is a foregone conclusion, Parliament or Assembly serves not as a solemn deliberative body but as a theatre for the demonstration of their power to disrupt. The well of the house becomes a stage for the Opposition members to crowd and jostle, waving placards and chanting slogans until the Speaker, after several futile attempts to restore order, adjourns in despair. In India's Parliament, many Opposition members feel that the best way to show the strength of their feelings is to disrupt the lawmaking rather than debate the law.

Given this sad reality and the hollowing out of the RTI, public accountability between elections is minimal. The government sees elections only as a means of acquiring power to rule the country as it wishes. But elections are literally all that we, the Indian public, have available to assert ourselves against the overweening power of the government—and that's what makes abridging their frequency through "One Nation, One Election" such an undemocratic proposal.

THE FADING COLOURS OF WATCHDOGS

C K G NAIR

The Digital Personal Data Protection Act, notified on August 11, 2023, has been a long-awaited legal shield for the people of India in these difficult times of the rapidly increasing misuse of personal information. It is a neatly drafted legislation, mainly following a principle-based approach (hence durable) backed by several illustrations, with only 44 Sections and one Schedule—it is altogether a crisp 21-page document.

Several expert commentaries, fine-combing some Sections and provisions of the law, are already available in the public domain. One major limitation of the law, according to most critics, is the amendment to the RTI Act, 2005, removing the obligation to disclose personal information. According to them, this amendment dilutes the RTI Act, an important tool in the hands of the citizens to make governance of public authorities transparent and accountable. A big battle won by people in 2005 is lost!

The RTI Act has travelled a distance of 18 years. Though still a teenager, it has had an initial active phase, which, by many yardsticks, has not been that pleasant for many stakeholders. There have been reports of some using the tool for unintended purposes and some others getting harassed for using it. Several issues, including primacy of the security of personal information, may be contributing to the alleged dilution of the RTI watchdog.

Most agencies of public governance or watchdogs are created by the legislature. All of them are established by the executive. Then, why are some of them not on the 'right' side of the governments of any day, and why are some others always on the right side of every government? The simple answer is that watchdogs in general are not that high in priority for the executive at all times, for multiple reasons.

Watchdogs are constituted for improving the governance of other agencies. They do not aid the agencies/their officials, but only question them on their alleged 'failure'. No one likes criticism, even constructive criticism. The bureaucracy is least known for appreciating criticism. Therefore, the assumption that asking tough questions or imposing small fines would improve governance is misplaced, particularly when ground-level governance is trapped in low-level equilibrium.

A hierarchical approach, even amongst equals, is ingrained in India's administrative philosophy and practice. No two ministries/departments are equal, and hence their ministers and secretaries, too, are 'unequal'. There are super-ministries and departments. It got officially legitimised about two decades ago when four secretaries to the Government of India were given fixed two-year tenures even if they crossed the normal retirement age of 60. Appointment of these 'super' secretaries would never get delayed. So is the case with heads of investigative agencies, though technically they are only equivalent to secretaries to the Government.

Several issues, including primacy of the security of personal information, may be contributing to the alleged dilution of the RTI watchdog

The same is the case with regulatory agencies as well as tribunals, the watchdogs of markets. Some of them do not take off while others fly high. Some remain headless for years, while for others, appointments could be done overnight. The resources made available to them, including infra-facilities, speak much about their relative status. It is comical that the office building of one such regulator has been overshadowed by a public restroom for more than a decade now. Many others functioned/function in the premises rented out by their regulated entities.

Frictions and inter-institutional bargaining are part of all large systems. State/government apparatus, historically being the largest, had always been in the throes of such internal 'power struggles'. Stories of how great rulers managed such 'palace intrigues' are still being told/sold by writers and moviemakers with great élan. Great administrators of modern times also try to balance the inter-institutional power equation, but mainly based on their direct usefulness to the system. That explains why administrative organisations usually get priority over advisory structures or revenue-generating ones over spending ones. Interestingly, an agency is considered more useful if it has powers over others, which often gets reflected in its office ambience.

Soon after the RTI Act was passed, the Central Information Commission was established and commissioners were appointed, there were high expectations. Still, there were Doubting Thomases' on the efficacy of having such legal-centric umbrella structures as watchdogs for promoting transparency when it is the ground-level agencies that needed to be efficient, empowering citizens as the first step. Transplanting the experiment in Scandinavia, where administrative efficiency is at its peak, to a situation of serious governance issues, was not considered a panacea at least by some who thought such moves would create more white elephants.

That is exactly what happened to the CIC/SICs, the Lokpal/Lokayuktas, NHRC/SHRCs, and the like. Currently, the Central information Commission has five members out of the sanctioned 11. It rarely makes any headlines, unlike in its initial years. The RTI twin, Lokpal, is no better. Though the Lokpal Act is only 10 years old and the Lokpal was set up initially with the maximum permissible strength of nine (Chair plus eight), it now comprises an Acting Chair and four members. The conditions of the SICs and Lokayuktas are no better, with many of them hardly functional. Thus, the issue is not about the political party in power or even the individual heading the watchdog. It is a systemic bias against watchdogs.

Socio-political pressures may succeed in getting legal-centric watchdogs set up, but given their roles/functions, their survival needs lots of luck. Ironically, greater efficiency of the ground-level organisations may improve the acceptability of such watchdogs like in well-governed countries, where complaints are few and far between.

G20: 'Namaskar in sacred land of Bharat'

Ministers receiving dignitaries briefed about etiquettes; to dress up in traditional attires reflecting country's culture

RAJESH KUMAR THAKUR @ New Delhi

"NAMASKAR! Apka Bharat ki pavitra bhumi par swagat hai" (You are welcome on the sacred land of Bharat). That's how 17 Modi ministers will greet foreign VVIPs and dignitaries arriving for the G20 Summit. The dignitaries will witness traditional Indian salutations upon arrival as well as a "heart-touching" see-off.

A senior official associated with a minister assigned to welcome the guests, said, "Bharat is known for its mesmerising cultural diversity hospitality. The ministers have also reportedly been asked to show maximum level of courtesy and humility while receiving G20 foreign delegates."

At the etiquette level, the ministers receiving the dignitaries have been briefed about what to say and how to carry themselves while receiving or seeing off the guests. The ministers would greet the delegates either with the country's traditional shawls or bunches of fresh flowers. "One thing is clear: 'Bharat' will mean the country," remarked a source.

The dresses of these ministers would reflect the country's culture. In a few exceptions, some ministers would be in Western attire — trousers with a matching shirt and tie.

While greeting, the Indian side will also keep in mind the cultural aspects of the other side. The dishes should prominently include a range of delicacies cooked with millets at government dinners to be served in silver and gold-plated tableware. "Around 1,550 silver-gold plated tableware and salvers for serving dishes have been arranged from various states," said a source.

"Soon after a delegate steps outs of the flight staircase, the ministers, along with other officials, will welcome him/her either in Hindi or English or probably in the native language of the delegate," said a source.

Most of the ministers greeting the guests are Ministers of State (MoS). Former Army chief and MoS VK Singh, along with MEA officials, have been assigned the responsibility of welcoming US President Joe Biden at Palam airport. He will also receive Chinese Premier Li Qiang. British PM Rishi Sunak, who has his roots in India, will be received and welcomed by MoS Ashwini Kumar Choubey. He would also receive Japanese PM Fumio Kishida.

Sources indicated that Railway MoS Darshana Jardosh will receive Bangladesh PM Sheikh Hasina while MoS Shibha Karandlaje will receive Italian PM Giorgia Meloni. MoS Nityanand Rai will welcome UAE's HH Sheikh Mohammed Bin Zayed Al Nahyan.

MoS Rajeev Chandrasekhar will receive Australian PM Anthony Albanese. MoS Bhanu Pratap Singh Verma will greet German Chancellor Olaf Scholz and MoS Anupriya Patel will welcome French President Emmanuel Macron.

Jairam, Joshi lock horns over special Parliament sessions

PREETHA NAIR @ New Delhi

A DAY after Congress leader Sonia Gandhi wrote to PM Narendra Modi about the Opposition not being kept in loop on the upcoming special session of Parliament, a war of words broke out between Union minister Pralhad Joshi and Congress leader Jairam Ramesh over procedures related to Parliament sessions.

Responding to Ramesh's charges that the previous governments had informed the agenda for special sessions in advance, Joshi accused him of twisting facts about constitutional provisions.

Ramesh had claimed that the agenda of every special session in the past was well known in advance and alleged that it was only the Modi government that "distorts" parliamentary conventions. He also cited past occasions such as the convening of a joint special session at the Central Hall on GST implementation on the midnight of June 30, 2017.

"A special session of the Lok Sabha was called in July 2008 for a trust vote after the Left parties withdrew support to the UPA-1 government. A special session was also called from August 26 to September 1 in 1997 to commemorate the 50th anniversary of India's independence," he pointed out.

Responding to Ramesh's claims, Joshi wrote, "The summoning of Parliament is the greatest boon in a democracy. However, there is a lobby of compulsive contrarians who oppose the same. 'A compulsive contrarian may be a master of doubt, but they often miss the beauty of certainty founded in truth'," he said.

Setting the record straight, Joshi said that Ramesh has been falsely claiming that the historic function in Central Hall on 30 June, 2017, for the GST rollout, was a Parliament session. "That's just not true! It wasn't a session under Article 85 of the Constitution. Here's a fact check: A session of Parliament under Article 85 of the Constitution is precisely that, and the agenda will be shared in accordance with established parliamentary practices," said Joshi.

An evening of musical journey at Prez dinner

PARVEZ SULTAN @ New Delhi

'Mile Sur Mera Tumhara'

- 78 INSTRUMENTALISTS FROM ACROSS STATES WILL ENTHRAL DELEGATES AT PRESIDENT'S DINNER ON SATURDAY
- THEY WILL PERFORM 3-HOUR-LONG 'BHARAT VADYA DARSHAN' (THE MUSICAL JOURNEY OF INDIA)
- IT WILL FEATURE ICONIC SONG 'MILE SUR MERA TUMHARA'
- RARE INSTRUMENTS SUCH AS SURBAHAR, JALTARANG, NALTARANG, VICHITRA VEENA, RUDRA VEENA, SARASWATI VEENA, DHANGLI, SUNDRI, BHAPANG AND DILRUBA WILL BE USED

AN ensemble comprising 78 instrumentalists from across states is set to enthral delegates attending the G20 Summit at Bharat Mandapam. The Ministry of Culture has planned a unique harmonious performance — Bharat Vadya Darshan (The Musical Journey of India) — at the dinner President Droupadi Murmu would be hosting on Saturday.

The three-hour show, starting at 6 pm, is divided into three parts. The performances will be in ascending tempo from Vilambit Laya (slow tempo composition), to medium or Madhya Laya, to fast or Druta Laya (concluding section).

The Vilambit Laya comprises Raag Malika and Rajasthani and Kashmiri folk songs. The middle section will have traditional songs of Gujarat, Maharashtra, Punjab, Assam, Sikkim, and Jammu & Kashmir besides Rabindra Sangeet and Raaga — Bihag, Pilu, Bhupali, Desh, Khamaj and Malkouns.

The concluding section includes performances based on different raags such as Darbari Kanada, Mohnam, folk music of Maharashtra, Goa, Gujarat, Sikkim, and Meghalaya. The highlights of this part will be devotional songs — Vaishnav Jan and Raghupati Raghav Raja Ram and also iconic song promoting national integration — Mile Sur Mera Tumhara, which is based on Raag Bhairavi and Dadra.

The song composed by renowned vocalist Bhimsen Joshi was telecast on Doordarshan for the first time in 1988 after the then Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi delivered his speech from the ramparts of the Red Fort on Independence Day.

Several rare instruments of India such as Surbahar, Jaltarang, Naltarang, Vichitra Veena, Rudra Veena, Saraswati Veena, Dhangli, Sundri, Bhapang and Dilruba will be used during the presentation.

"Bharat Vadya Darshan is envisaged as a sequence of instrumental music performances, wherein the audience will be taken on a one-and-a-half hour journey of India through the representative music of different States of the country. What truly sets this ensemble apart is the inclusion of 34 Hindustani musical instruments, 18 Carnatic musical instruments, and 26 folk musical instruments featuring 78 artists including 11 children, 13 women, six differently-abled (Divyang) artists, 26 young men and 22 professionals," said officials privy to arrangements.

The responsibility to curate the event was entrusted with Sangeet Natak Akademi under the Ministry of Culture. The performance has been conceptualised by chairman of the Akademi Sandhya Purecha. Chetan Kumar Joshi is the music director.

"Some of the prominent styles included in the presentation are Hindustani, carnatic, folk and contemporary music. This journey will take us through all parts of India through their representative music," officials added.

With so much happening, will rain play spoilsport? No, says Met department

JITENDRA CHOUBEY @ New Delhi

THE Indian Meteorological Department (IMD) has predicted cloudy weather with the possibility of a spell of very light rain towards the evening or night of September 9, the day the G20 leaders are slated to meet at Bharat Mandapam.

From Thursday, the IMD has begun 'Nowcast', a real-time weather bulletin valid for the next three hours. "We have started the Nowcast weather bulletin for every three hours," said Akhil Srivastava, IMD scientist in charge of the bulletin. "In case of any change in weather, we will also broadcase in one or two hours," he said.

The recent bulletin shows no rain on Friday, except for the cloudy sky. However, it said there will be the possibility of a drizzle or very light rain towards the evening or night with cloudy sky and south-easterly winds at 3-5 kmph speed on September 9 and 10.

Meanwhile, the Delhi government is prepared with a foolproof plan to deal with water-logging in case of any extreme weather events. The Delhi LG's office said that four heavy duty mobile de-watering trucks, borrowed from Ahmedabad, have been deployed at ITPO and Rajghat areas to avert any waterlogging or flooding-related eventuality.

INDIA TRANSFORMING AGRICULTURE VIA DIGITAL REVOLUTION

NARENDRA SINGH TOMAR
Minister of Agriculture & Farmers Welfare

UNDER the guidance of Prime Minister Narendra Modi, the G20 under India's presidency is making the entire nation proud. Everyone has a feeling of pride. Entering the "Amrit Kaal" era, India has embarked on a transformational journey towards development, especially in the agriculture sector. It has always been at the forefront of human progress, providing sustenance, livelihoods, and economic stability. With the advent of digitalisation and emerging technologies, the agriculture sector is witnessing a new wave of transformation. This digital revolution has the potential to take agriculture to the next level while helping governments and stakeholders tackle pressing challenges related to food security, the environment, and socio-economic development.

At the heart of this transformation lies the Open Public Digital Infrastructure concept, a critical enabler for effective, synergetic, and scalable digital solutions in agriculture. Embracing open standards and interoperability, Digital Public Goods hold the potential to drive inclusive growth, foster cooperation, and facilitate international trade by reducing costs and expediting adoption. One such example of digital public goods can be found in the innovative initiatives developed by the Government of India, including the India Stack and the Aadhar ecosystem, the Unified Payments Interface (UPI), and the National Health Stack.

Applying similar digital public infrastructure in agriculture promises to revolutionise farming practices and enhance farm productivity through sustainable methods. Services like Real-time Advisory, the Internet of Things, Artificial Intelligence and Remote Sensing will strengthen digital infrastructure and reduce the digital divide in agriculture. Easy access to financing and other resources levels the playing field, especially for small and marginal farmers. It enables them to compete effectively, expand their operations, and invest in cutting-edge agricultural technologies.

The G20 member nations also committed to collaborating with all stakeholders and strengthening capacity-building efforts, including disseminating digital tools and technology and promoting its adoption by farmers, especially by marginal, smallholders, family farmers, women, youth, indigenous people as applicable, ageing farmers and other underrepresented groups.

The cross-border and global exchange of experiences will provide insights into the use of digital technologies in agriculture and improve food systems.

> SERVICES LIKE REAL-TIME ADVISORY, INTERNET OF THINGS, ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE AND REMOTE SENSING WILL BOOST DIGITAL INFRASTRUCTURE AND REDUCE DIGITAL DIVIDE IN AGRICULTURE. EASY ACCESS TO FINANCING AND OTHER RESOURCES LEVELS THE PLAYING FIELD FOR SMALL FARMERS

The involvement of both the public and private sectors, through science, technology, and innovation (STI) initiatives, can invigorate the technological and digitally enabled agri-food system. Agri-tech start-ups have a significant role to play by providing innovative and affordable solutions that address challenges across the agricultural value chain using open digital networks. Through a multi-dimensional, multi-stakeholder, and collaborative approach, we can unlock digitalisation's transformative potential in agriculture, ensuring a sustainable and prosperous future for farmers and the broader agricultural ecosystem.

India is focusing on transforming agriculture through the digital revolution and reiterating its commitment to address food security and nutrition on the global stage. Under the able guidance of Prime Minister Shri Narendra Modi, the brainstorming held in the G20 meetings chaired by India is being discussed all over the country and the world. An important grouping of the G20 deals with agriculture, which has held meetings in different cities of India over the past months, emphasising promoting food security and climate resilience through sustainable agriculture. This has been a major topic during the meetings, which concerns the whole world.

The G20 Agriculture Working Group (AWG) meetings held during this mega event were historic. The achievements of the Agriculture Working Group represent the collective efforts of over 200 delegates who have travelled over the past months from India's cleanest city, Indore, to the well-planned urban landscape of Chandigarh, to the holy city of Varanasi, and finally reached the mesmerising city of pearls, Hyderabad.

The G20 Agriculture Ministers' Meeting held on 16-17 June 2023 in Hyderabad, India, offers a major milestone in the global food security and nutrition discourse. This gathering reaffirmed international commitments to establishing inclusive, resilient, and sustainable agricultural systems.

The context: An unprecedented call for action

The meeting's outcome document covered the global community's concerns about food and fertiliser price volatility, supply chain disruptions, and geopolitical tensions. Resilient and reliable supply chains were emphasised as essential for global food security, particularly for marginalised groups like women and girls during humanitarian crises.

Diversifying food resources

One of the meeting's standout sections focuses on the importance of nutritious, diverse, sustainably produced food. Encouraging initiatives to innovate in crop development, the ministers highlighted the need for climate-resilient, locally adapted, and underutilised grains. The document emphasises the role of research and development in enhancing agricultural productivity.

Nutrition and biofortification

The ministers endorsed an evidence-based approach to nutrition, stressing that nutrient adequacy must primarily come from a diverse food base. They also acknowledged the potential of biofortification in improving the nutritional content of crops.

A focus on Sustainable Development Goals

The ministers recognised the interconnectedness of sustainable agriculture, food production, international trade, and the achievement of the SDGs—especially the zero-hunger goal (SDG2). According to recent projections, almost 600 million people will still be chronically undernourished by 2030, underscoring the immense challenge of eradicating hunger. They highlighted the importance of enhancing capacity in developing countries for sustainable food production, storage, marketing, and loss reduction.

Transparency and data-driven decision-making

The Agricultural Market Information System (AMIS) and the Group on Earth Observations Global Agricultural Monitoring (GEOGLAM) were acknowledged as crucial initiatives for enhancing agricultural market transparency. Given that food insecurity is not just a matter of availability but also of access.

Implications, future actions

Under India's leadership in this G20 meeting, these discussions provide a scaffold upon which international initiatives can be built or expanded, offering a timely response to the increasing acute food insecurity and persistently high levels of hunger reported globally.

The roadmap has been laid. The challenge now is implementation. As nations share best practices and build on these principles, the promise of a world with robust food security and better nutrition comes closer to realisation. This meeting serves as a significant catalyst, potentially changing the course of food security and nutrition for generations to come.

INNOVATION

A lawyer in Indore has created a book weighing 57 kilograms that has been made using copper plates, also called 'tamrapatras' in ancient times, in a crowdfunding effort that saw 42,000 persons donate ₹1 each.

Maha caste row deepens as Shinde comes up with order, triggers uproar

SUDHIR SURYAWANSHI @Mumbai

THE Maharashtra government on Thursday issued a government resolution (GR) on Thursday saying the Kunbi caste certificate will be issued to those Marathas from the Marathawada region who possess pre-Nizam-era or revenue or education documents recognising them as the Kunbis.

However, quota activist Manoj Jarange has asked the state government to drop the clause of genealogy while giving Kunbi caste certificates for availing reservation benefits under the OBC category. A former state minister met him with an appeal to end his 10-day-old fast over the issue.

Jarange, on an indefinite fast since August 29 at Antarwali Sarati village in Jalna district demanding reservation for the Marathas in jobs and education, sought an amendment to the GR on providing Kunbi caste certificates to community members from the Marathwada region before ending his agitation.

The GR says the state government has formed a five-member committee under retired judge Sandeep Shinde to fix the Standard Operating Procedure for the issuance of Kunbi caste certificates to Marathas.

Such people who have Maratha-Kunbi or Kunbi-Maratha caste certificates are in consonance with the genealogy and possess educational documents, revenue and historical references and other agreement papers since the pre-Nizam era.

"The committee should validate all these collected documents the fact that Marathas from Marathawada are the Kunbi by caste. The procedure should also be fixed for the issuance of the Kunbi caste certificate to these people. A revenue officer committee that was earlier constituted will assist the committee," GR said.

'Drop genealogy clause'

Quota activist Manoj Jarange has asked the state to drop the genealogy clause when giving Kunbi caste certificates for availing reservation benefits under the OBC category.

Cong's 7 yatras to counter BJP's 5

Party plans Jan Akrosh Yatras to let voters know about 'deteriorating law and order' in MP

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bhopal

WITH the campaigning in the poll-bound Madhya Pradesh gaining speed, both the ruling Bharatiya Janata Party and principal opposition Congress are getting engaged in a 'yatra war'.

The BJP has already launched five 'Jan Ashirwad yatras' from different parts of the state, to reach people and inform them about the "development work" during the party's 18-year-old rule and "corruption" in the 15-month-old Kamal Nath-led Congress government.

In a tit for tat, Congress has planned 'Jan Akrosh Yatras' to inform the voters about the "deteriorating law and order" situation, particularly, "rising crimes" against SC, ST and women and "corruption" in Chief Minister Shivraj Singh Chouhan-led government.

According to a senior state Congress leader, seven senior leaders will launch the yatras from different parts of the state on September 15.

While the party's poll campaign committee chief and former union minister Kantilal Bhuria will lead the yatra in the tribal-dominated Mahakoshal region, another ex-minister Arun Yadav will head it in Nimar region (southwestern MP). Ex-parliamentarian Suresh Pachouri will launch the yatra from central MP, while former leader of opposition in the state assembly Ajay Singh 'Rahul' (son of ex-CM Arjun Singh) will lead it in Bundelkhand region.

Moreover, the current leader of the opposition, Dr Govind Singh will be taking the yatra in his native Gwalior-Chambal region, which is also the home turf of several powerful BJP leaders, including two union ministers – Jyotiraditya Scindia and Narendra Singh Tomar.

Former MP minister Jitu Patwari will lead the Yatra in his native Malwa region (western MP), while another former MP minister and newly appointed Congress Working Committee (CWC) member Kamleshwar Patel will head it in the Vindhya/Baghelkhand region.

Taking a potshot at Congress, Chouhan said on Thursday, "Our Jan Ashirwad yatra is to seek the blessings of people who love sustained work for bettering their lives. On the other hand, the Congress has named its yatras Jan Akrosh Yatra, as the party knows that it will have to face Jan Akrosh (public angst) over the 900-odd promises of its 2018 poll manifesto which remained unfulfilled, despite the Congress being in power for 15 months."

Neemuch violence

Meanwhile, as many as five persons, including one Khema Gurjar, who is allegedly associated with the Congress, have been arrested in connection with the Tuesday evening attack on BJP's Jan Ashirwad Yatra in Neemuch district of west MP.

The Congress has claimed that the attack was the result of anger among residents of Ravalkudi village over their milch cattle's grazing land being included in the alternative habitat for African cheetahs being developed in the Gandhi Sagar Wildlife Sanctuary.

But the ruling BJP claims that those who attacked the Yatra were actually Congress people, who took advantage of villagers' grouse over the issue.

Fadnavis apologises for cop action on Marathas

Maharashtra Deputy Chief Minister Devendra Fadnavis, who is also the Home Minister, tends to measure his words when speaking on any subject. He was compelled to eat the humble pie over police lathicharge, air and tear gas firing to Maratha protests in Jalna. Fadnavis had earlier defended the police actions – lathicharge against Maratha protests — and refused to apologise and resign as HM. But when the matter went out of hand and the fear of losing 35% Maratha vote bank ahead of key elections spread, top BJP leadership asked Fadnavis to eat his word and extend an apology to the Maratha community.

Cong MLA in a fix over remark on Maratha stir

Maharashtra Congress MLA and Leader of Opposition Vijay Wadettiwar got himself into trouble over his habit of giving quotes to the media. This time, it was over the Maratha protest and their inclusion in the OBC category. State Congress chief Nana Patole snubbed him and clarified that Congress party is in favour of giving reservations to the Maratha community, but they should not be given reservations under OBCs, but should have separate quotas. Wadettiwar's media byte over OBC reservation has already been submitted to the party high-command for further action.

Sharad Pawar begins 'Berjeche Rajkaran'

After a big leadership void, NCP chief Sharad Pawar has started the Berjeche Rajkaran – caste arithmetic that used to be performed by first chief minister of Maharashtra Yashwantrao Chavan successfully. Pawar seems to be mending his third generation leadership grooming lapses by appointing advocate Rohini Khadse as president of NCP's state women wing. Khade is the daughter of senior leader Eknath Khadse. She belongs to the Leva community caste that is decisive in seven state assembly constituencies in Jalgaon and two Lok Sabha constituencies while it is also significant in some parts of Maharashtra.

Mamata welcome to protest in Raj Bhavan, says Guv

PRANAB MONDAL @Kolkata

REACTING to Mamata Banerjee's threat to stage a dharna in front of Raj Bhavan in protest against the governor's alleged intervention in the affairs of the state universities, Governor C.V. Ananda Bose on Thursday said the West Bengal chief minister can stage demonstration within the premises of the Raj Bhavan and not outside and he would welcome her.

"The chief minister is my honoured colleague. She is welcome to Raj Bhavan. She can come inside Raj Bhavan and stage all her demonstrations here. She can come as the honoured guest of Raj Bhavan to demonstrate here," said Bose shortly after returning Kolkata from Delhi.

Two days ago, Mamata lambasted Bose for his decision to appoint interim vice-chancellors for 16 universities in West Bengal without concurrence of the state government. She also said her government would fund for the universities.

The Bengal governor, however, on Thursday made it clear that he would stick to his action. "I will fight till the end to make sure the universities across the state are free from violence and corruption. A 17-year-old student lost his precious life in a university. It cannot continue," he said.

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Guwahati

IN BJP-ruled Tripura, the CPI(M)-led Left Front will boycott Friday's counting of votes of the "rigged" by-elections to two Assembly seats.

Boxanagar and Dhanpur constituencies, which went to by-elections on September 5, had recorded a combined voter turnout of 86.56%.

The Left Front alleged the by-polls were "completely rigged and made a farce". It said although it had drawn the attention of the Election Commission time and again right from the beginning of polling, no positive steps were taken to prevent rigging.

"In this backdrop, the Tripura Left Front demanded to countermand the rigged election to these two constituencies and go for announcement of fresh election. But surprisingly, the EC has not budged," the Left Front said. "Under such circumstances…we have decided to boycott the counting of votes on 8th August, 2023," the statement further said.

CPI(M) state secretary Jitendra Choudhury said the party would not depute any agents at the counting centres. He alleged the party's polling agents could not attend duties in nearly half of the 110 polling stations on the day of elections due to attacks and threats by BJP workers.

The BJP rubbished the charges. The party claimed the elections were held in a free and fair manner and that there was a festive mood among voters.

The Congress and the Tipra Motha Party did not contest the polls to avoid the division of anti-BJP votes. The TMP had earlier declared that it would not support the BJP or CPI-M.

Distributing Bible no allurement to conversion, says HC

NAMITA BAJPAI @Lucknow

IN a significant observation, the Lucknow bench of Allahabad High Court has said that distributing 'Bible' and other religious books and imparting good teachings cannot be called an allurement for religious conversion, attracting offences under the UP Prohibition of Unlawful Conversion of Religion Act 2021 (UPPUCRA-2021).

While granting bail to two accused persons who were booked for alluring persons of Scheduled Caste and Scheduled Tribe Community for their conversion to Christianity, Justice Shamim Ahmad said that an unaffected person could not lodge an FIR for offences under the UPPUCRA-2021.

The bench also passed the order allowing an appeal filed against rejection of bail pleas of the two accused persons named Jose Papachen and Sheeja. The appellants were sent to jail in pursuance to an FIR lodged by a BJP office-bearer with Jalalpur police station in Ambedkar Nagar district on January 24, 2023.

The complainant had alleged that the two accused persons were alluring the SC/ST community people for getting converted into Christianity. In his order, Justice Ahmad observed, "Providing teaching, distributing Bible, encouraging children for getting education, organising assembly of villagers and performing Bhandara, instructing the villagers not to enter into altercation and not to take liquor do not amount to allurement under the 2021 Act."

Distributing Bible, encouraging children to get education, organising assembly of villagers for Bhandara, instructing them not to enter into altercation and not to take liquor do not amount to allurement

Judge Shamim Ahmad

The bench further said that the UPPUCRA-2021 provided that only an aggrieved person or his family could lodge the FIR in the matter of conversion but in the present case, the FIR was lodged by a BJP office-bearer.

It was argued on behalf of the appellants that they were innocent and were implicated due to political rivalry. It was also said that helping people was a failure on state's part to provide amenities to the people.

Come October 1, Kalka-Shimla toy train to be back on British-era track

HARPREET BAJWA @Chandigarh

FROM October 1, the 120-year-old Kalka-Shimla narrow-gauge line, a Unesco world heritage site, is expected to be back in action after suffering damage in the rain fury.

The British-era 'Toy Train' track was damaged at 352 places as a bridge was washed away due to heavy rains leading to flash floods and landslides in Himachal Pradesh.

Retaining walls and cross drains are being constructed, besides other protection and tunnel grouting is continuing along the track to make it withstand natural disasters.

Railway sources said the Toy Train, which runs 96-km railway track, passes through 18 stations, 102 tunnels and 988 bridges. This way, it offers a majestic view of most of the route.The track repair began in July as it was damaged at 352 locations. Of these, 327 have been repaired. The section between the Jutogh and Summer Hill stations, just before Shimla, was washed away after the bridge gave way.

Portion of Kalka-Shimla railway track got washed away in heavy rains in Himachal

On July 8, piles of mud, boulders and trees fell on the tracks at 135 places, and then in mid-August, the track was damaged due to heavy rains. The Union Ministry of Railways has sanctioned ₹15 crore for the repair and restoration works of the track.

Talking with this newspaper, Divisional Railway Manager (DRM), Ambala, Mandeep Bhatia said, "We were expecting that the colonial railway line would be fixed by September 30 and from October 1, the service will start. By September 20, the track will be restored till Solan. Meanwhile, the train services till Koti have already been started from September 5."

Bhatia said his department has already carried out repairs at most locations and that work on 25 locations is going on.

The railway line was declared a Unesco World Heritage Site on July 8, 2008, as it offers picturesque views of lush green trees and valleys. The toy train winds its way up from Kalka in Haryana at an elevation of 2,152 feet above sea level to Shimla, the capital of Himachal Pradesh, at 6,808 feet.

₹47K cr spent without due process in 20 yrs: CAG

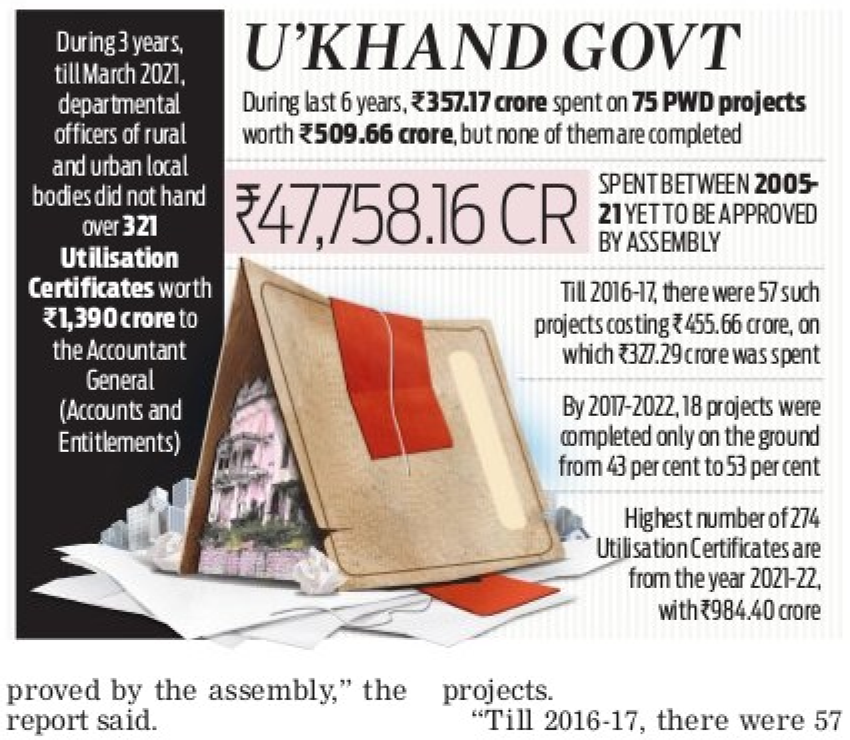
NARENDRA SETHI @Dehradun

A report by the Comptroller and Auditor General of India (CAG) has made significant observations on the haphazard financial expenditure of successive governments in Uttarakhand during their respective tenures.

"During the last 20 years, the state government spent ₹47,758 crore in their tenure and did not even bother to regularise it from the assembly," the CAG report, tabled in the monsoon session of the assembly on Wednesday, revealed.

Commenting on the poor financial management by the state government, the report pointed out, "Moreover, more money was spent than the actual estimate, while not a single rupee could be spent without the will of the legislature."

The CAG report on state finances tabled in the assembly on Wednesday also raised several questions on the government's budgetary management in the state finances for the year ended March 31, 2022. "An amount of ₹47,758.16 crore, which was spent more during 2005-06 to 2020-21, is yet to be approved by the assembly," the report said.



During 3 years, till March 2021, departmental officers of rural and urban local bodies did not hand over 321 Utilisation Certificates worth ₹1,390 crore to the Accountant General (Accounts and Entitlements)

U'KHAND GOVT

During last 6 years, ₹357.17 crore spent on 75 PWD projects worth ₹509.66 crore, but none of them are completed

₹47,758.16 CR SPENT BETWEEN 2005-21 YET TO BE APPROVED BY ASSEMBLY

Till 2016-17, there were 57 such projects costing ₹455.66 crore, on which ₹327.29 crore was spent

By 2017-2022, 18 projects were completed only on the ground from 43 per cent to 53 per cent

Highest number of 274 Utilisation Certificates are from the year 2021-22, with ₹984.40 crore

The CAG considers it a violation of Articles 204 and 205 of the Constitution.

"During the last six years, ₹357.17 crore was spent on 75 projects of the Public Works Department worth ₹509.66 crore, but none of these projects could be completed," the CAG said, adding that effective steps need to be taken for immediate completion of all these projects.

"Till 2016-17, there were 57 such projects costing ₹455.66 crore, on which ₹327.29 crore was spent and their financial progress was also 71.83 per cent, while by 2017-2022, 18 projects were also completed only on the ground from 43 per cent to 53 per cent," the report said.

"During the three years till March 2021, departmental officers of rural and urban local bodies did not hand over 321 Utilisation Certificates (UC) worth ₹1,390 crore to the Accountant General (Accounts and Entitlements)," the CAG said, pointing out that "all these certificates should have been submitted by March 2022". "Of these, the highest number of 274 UCs are from the year 2021-22, with an amount of ₹984.40 crore," the report said.

"There are 39 UCs worth ₹384.86 crore in 2020-21 and eight UCs worth ₹20.82 crore in 2019-20 pending," the CAG said, adding that it was fraught with the risk of misuse of funds and fraud.

Speaking to this newspaper, state finance minister Premchand Agarwal said, "After taking cognizance of the CAG report, the points mentioned in it will be worked out in detail and work will be done towards its solution".

According to the CAG report, Uttarakhand spent less funds in the health sector compared to the north-eastern Himalayan states. The report advocates more spending in social services, education and health to raise the level of human development.

GETTING FUTURE-READY

PUTIN ORDERS HIS GOVT TO FUND RESEARCH ON A.I.

MOSCOW

RUSSIAN President Vladimir Putin has ordered his government to fund research into artificial intelligence as competition with the West to develop such technology heats up, according to a Kremlin document published Thursday. Generative AI bots burst into the spotlight late in 2022 after US-made ChatGPT demonstrated its ability to engage in human-like conversations, prompting Russia to develop its own technology.

According to the document, the Russian president has ordered the government to "implement measures" to support AI research, including by "providing for an annual allocation from the federal budget".

This research would include "optimising machine learning algorithms" as well as developing "large language models" — such as the one developed by OpenAI's ChatGPT — the document said. It also called on state-owned firms to accelerate the roll-out of AI and ordered the government to support the creation of "super computers" by providing benefits to Russian manufacturers.

Putin has repeatedly called for Russia to achieve what he calls "technological sovereignty", as Western sanctions over the conflict in Ukraine block Moscow from getting computer parts such as semiconductors.

In April, Russia's largest banking company Sber announced the launch of its own conversational artificial intelligence app called "Gigachat", but in test mode only. ChatGPT's success sparked a rush among other tech firms and venture capitalists, with Google hurrying out its own chatbot and investors pouring cash into all manner of AI projects. AFP

Ukraine offensive picking up pace

BRUSSELS

UKRAINIAN forces have been able to break through Russian defences and are making progress in their counteroffensive against Moscow's troops, NATO chief Jens Stoltenberg said Thursday.

General Stoltenberg said that when Russia launched its invasion, its military was seen as the second strongest in the world, adding: Now the Russian army is the second strongest in Ukraine.

"The Ukrainians are gradually gaining ground and it proves the importance of our support and also our ability and willingness to continue the support," he told European Union lawmakers. "This is heavy fighting, difficult fighting, but they have been able to breach the defensive lines of the Russian forces, and they are moving forward," Stoltenberg said.

In recent days, Ukraine has claimed to have broken through Russia's heavily fortified first line of defence in its gruelling southern offensive.

Ukraine received shipments of Western armour from NATO members, including battle tanks and armoured vehicles, to aid its push.

However, Kyiv admits the months-long drive southwards has been slower than hoped and has inflicted a heavy toll on its forces.

Ukraine's troops have reportedly had to increasingly resort to smaller-scale attacks on foot after full-frontal assaults were stalled by the dense minefields laid by the Russians.

"Hardly any time in history we have seen more mines on the battlefield than we see in Ukraine today. So it was obvious that this was going to be extremely difficult," Stoltenberg said.

"But the Ukrainians decided to launch the offensive because they are going to liberate their land, and they are making progress. Not perhaps as much as we hoped for, but they are gaining ground gradually, some 100 metres per day," he said.

"In hardly any war we will see only victories for the side we support. There will be bad days and good days. We need to be with Ukraine not only (in) good times, but also bad times," Stoltenberg said. AFP

Market rallies despite global headwinds

Investors remain bullish even as foreign inflows continue to be patchy amid falling rupee, global economic uncertainty

ARSHAD KHAN @ New Delhi

BULL-RUN continues in the domestic equity market as benchmark indices the Sensex and the Nifty50 closed higher for the fifth consecutive session on Thursday.

This five-day rally comes despite muted global cues, the US dollar getting stronger and a rise in crude oil prices. On Thursday, Sensex closed 0.58% higher at 66,265.56 while the broader Nifty50 settled 0.49% higher at 19,707. In the past five sessions, Sensex has gained 2% while Nifty has surged 2.25%. "After a volatile start, markets rebounded sharply to maintain its upward bias for the fifth consecutive session, even as foreign inflows continued to be patchy amid falling rupee and global economic uncertainty. Market remained bullish despite weakness across the Asian and US markets, as investors remained upbeat about India's long-term growth prospects," said Shrikant Chouhan, head of research (Retail), Kotak Securities.

Asian markets, such as Japan's Nikkei and China's Shanghai Composite fell up to 1% each. The US dollar on Thursday was trading near a multi-month high level against many other currencies and international oil hovered around the $90 per barrel mark. Deepak Jasani, head of Retail Research, HDFC Securities, said global equities mostly fell on Thursday as new signs of sustained inflationary pressures in the United States and rising energy prices globally boosted the case for higher-for-longer interest rates.

The gain in the equity market is also attributed to a strong economic outlook and stock-specific select buying. Meanwhile, India's Small-cap and mid-cap stocks continue to see strong buying and from the lows of late March 2023, the Nifty Smallcap 100 index has surged about 40% while the Nifty Midcap 100 has risen by 36%. In the same period, the Nifty50 has delivered a relatively modest return of 16%.

This sharp rally in mid-cap and small-cap stocks has become a matter of concern as some analysts have passed a cautious note to investors. Ajit Mishra, SVP of Technical Research at Religare Broking, said there are overbought indications in the mid-cap space.

Vinod Nair, Head of Research at Geojit Financial Services, while being bullish at Mid & Smallcaps, noted that there has been strong performance in the short term by Mid & Smallcaps but sustaining this in the near term may pose a challenge. On Thursday, the top five gainers on the Nifty50 were Coal India, L&T, IndusInd Bank, SBI Life and Tech Mahindra. Coal India, PSU stocks, hit a fresh 52-week high today and have gained over 17% in five trading sessions.

Foxconn-STMicro to set up chip unit

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

TAIWANESE tech giant Foxconn Technology group is exploring partnership with STMicroelectronics NV to build a semiconductor factory in India.

As per media reports, Foxconn and Franco-Italian STMicro are applying for PLI incentive for a 40-nanometer chip plant. The government has asked Foxconn, Apple Inc.'s key assembly partner, for more details about its partnership with STMicro, the people aware of the matter said.

Reports stated that by partnering with STMicro, contract manufacturer Foxconn is tapping the expertise of a chip industry pioneer to expand in the lucrative but difficult semiconductor business. Foxconn is also in talks with a few other companies that have chip-making technology.

This is the second attempt by Foxconn group to begin semiconductor manufacturing in the country. Earlier, the company partnered with billionaire Anil Agarwal's Vedanta Limited, applied for setting up of fab manufacturing unit in Gujarat. However, the government didn't approve of their application, and asked them to reapply under the new scheme. Later, both the companies announced breaking up of the partnership, and applying individually. It is believed that the reason for the rejection of their application was inexperience in chip making. Both Vedanta and Foxconn have no expertise in chip making, and are new to the semiconductor sector.

The government also asked them to find partner who are in the semiconductor business. Recently, the government approved the application of US-based Micron Technology Inc, which will invest in a $2.75 billion assembly and testing facility in Gujarat.

Blanket crypto ban can be costly, not an easy option: IMF-FSB paper

UMA KANNAN @ Bengaluru

BLANKET bans making all crypto-asset activities (trading and mining) illegal can be costly and not an easy option, says the International Monetary Fund (IMF) and the Financial Stability Board (FSB) in a Synthesis Paper.

This paper, released on Thursday, will be submitted to G20 members this weekend. As per the paper, targeted restrictions could be justified to manage specific risks for resource-constrained authorities or to support regulatory frameworks.

The collective recommendations provide comprehensive guidance to help authorities address the macroeconomic and financial stability risks posed by crypto asset activities and markets, including those associated with stable coins and those conducted via so-called decentralised finance (DeFi). "The emergence of clear risks necessitates appropriate policy responses. While crypto assets are not yet a significant part of the global financial system, they have the potential to emerge as a source of systemic risk in specific jurisdictions if they gain traction for payments or retail investments," it said.

The paper said developing effective frameworks and policies is the best way to limit substitution into crypto assets. Governments should minimise fiscal and operational risks in cases of official crypto asset use. Official payment use should be limited to avoid exposing government revenues to variations in crypto asset prices, it added.

Crypto players say these recommendations are a significant leap forward in establishing a comprehensive regulatory framework. "Firstly, it talks about the macroeconomic and financial stability risks associated with cryptocurrencies. Secondly, the report suggests that the emerging markets and developing economies (EMDEs) may choose to implement targeted measures beyond the global regulatory baseline to address specific risks giving them liberty," said Edul Patel, CEO & co-founder of Mudrex, a crypto investment platform.

"Licensing structure for crypto asset service providers is something Japan, South Korea and some others have proactively implemented; India could now consider a similar regime," said Ashish Singhal, cofounder and CEO, CoinSwitch.

Ashok Leyland arm rolls out commercial EVs

VAITHEESWARAN B @ Chennai

SWITCH Mobility forays into the electric commercial vehicle segment with the launch of two models -- IeV 3 and IeV 4 -- with a payload of 1.2 to 1.7 tonne and a range of up to 300 km on a single day.

These vehicles come with a 330V high voltage system and have a battery pack ranging from 25.6 to 32.2 kWh. The company said these vehicles have interoperability with existing charging infrastructure of cars and could be charged completely in an hour in fast charging. The cargo body can extend up to 9.7 feet.

The launch of the IeV series on Thursday also marks Ashok Leyland, its parent company's 75th anniversary.

Switch mobility expects business-to-business (B2B) customers will propel sale of electric commercial vehicles in the initial days as large corporations pledge to de-carbonisation their operations. The focus will be on e-commerce companies, MSMEs, municipal applications for last and mid-mile transportation. It has signed a memorandum of understanding for sale of 13,000 vehicles with e-commerce and logistics players like Amazon, Flipkart, Gati, Trasworld, among others and aims to deliver them in 12- 18 months. Speaking to this newspaper ahead of the launch, Mahesh Babu, chief executive of Switch Mobility, said the focus is on domestic market and neighbouring countries and later expand to African, South East Asian, South American markets. "We expect the sale of electric light commercial vehicles to grow 10X in the current year and a 45%- 60% CAGR (compound annual growth rate) in the segment for the next ten years. The sale of electric LCVs in the country are currently insignificant, setting the low base. He said Switch has struck partnerships with banks and NBFCs to finance the vehicles as well. The vehicles are manufactured at Leyland's Hosur facility with a capacity of 3,000 vehicles with about 60- 70% localisation of components.

Mahesh Babu stressed that demand side incentives are necessary in the adoption of emerging technologies and expects FAME-III to support the LCV segment.

Meanwhile Ashok Leyland Chairperson Dheeraj Hinduja said despite the focus on electric vehicles, diesel still has quite a long way to go. "We need to take into account the economic aspects and the cost factors when we look at alternate fuel," the Chairman said refuting claims that Ashok Leyland would only focus on electric vehicles," he said responding to a question.

India adds 1.3 GW open access solar in first half

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ Mumbai

IN the first half (H1) of CY 2023, India added 1.3 GW of open access solar, down almost 18% compared to 1.6 GW installed in H1 of 2022 , according to Mercom India Solar Open Access Market Report.

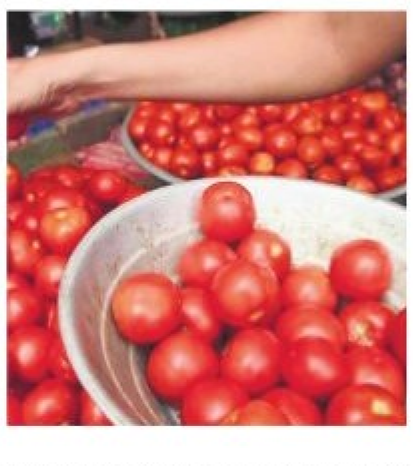
Nearly 712 megawatts (MW) of solar open access were added in the second quarter (Q2) of the calendar year (CY) 2023.

The installations were up nearly 24% quarter-over-quarter (QoQ) as against 577 MW installed in Q1, 2023. The report noted that in the second quarter, falling module prices lowered the project costs, making power purchase agreements (PPAs) more appealing, which resulted in higher open access solar installations. However, installations fell slightly by 3.6% year-over-year (YoY) as aganist 739 MW installed in Q2, 2022.

"The green energy open access regulation has been a major enabler for increased solar capacity addition under open access, even with the lack of uniform rules in states being a challenge. Hybrid power projects with a combination of solar, wind, and even energy storage are proving to be sound investments for corporate," said Priya Sanjay, MD at Mercom India. Gujarat added the highest open access solar capacity in Q2, 2023, accounting for over 46% of capacity additions, followed by Karnataka (21%) and Tamil Nadu (10%).

High tomato prices make household thalis costlier; relief expected in Sept

MONIKA YADAV @ New Delhi



COST of household thali saw a slight decline in August as compared to the previous month, but remained elevated as compared to the same period last financial year.

The primary factor contributing to this increase was the firm prices of tomatoes, according to recent data shared by CRISIL. The rising costs affected both vegetarian and non-vegetarian thalis, with the former experiencing a 24% rise and the latter seeing a 13% increase year-on-year.

Of 24% increase in cost of a vegetarian thali, a significant 21% can be attributed to the soaring price of tomatoes. Tomato prices rose by a staggering 176% year-on-year, reaching ₹102 per kg in August, compared to ₹37 per kg a year ago. Other contributing factors in the cost of vegetarian thali included an 8% rise in onion prices, a 20% jump in chili prices, and a substantial 158% surge in cumin prices. Collectively, these factors accounted for nearly 1% of the overall increase in cost of vegetarian thali.

On the other hand, as per the report, increase in cost of non-vegetarian thali was relatively slower due to a moderate 1-3% rise in the price of broilers, which constitute over 50% of the total cost.

Aviation industry's losses to fall significantly in FY24 on traffic growth: ICRA

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @New Delhi

DOMESTIC aviation industry is estimated to report a significantly lower net loss of ₹3,000-5,000 crore in financial year 2023-24 (FY24) as against an estimated ₹17,000-17,500 crore net loss in FY23, rating agency ICRA said on Thursday in its mid year review of the sector.

This projection comes as domestic air passenger traffic is likely to witness an 8-13% year-on-year (YoY) growth in FY24 to reach 150-155 million, thereby surpassing pre-Covid levels.

ICRA noted that the industry witnessed a better pricing power, as reflected in improved yields and thus the revenue per available seat kilometre – cost per available seat kilometre (RASK-CASK) spread of the airlines. The pricing power is expected to continue with a YoY fall in aviation turbine fuel (ATF) prices since April 2023 (notwithstanding recent uptick) and relatively stable foreign exchange rates.

The improvement in yields for the airlines, however, will remain a monitorable amid elevated ATF prices and depreciation of rupee vis-à-vis the US dollar as compared to pre-covid levels, both of which have a major bearing on the airlines' cost structure.

The average ATF prices stood at ₹98,892/KL in first six months of FY24, 53% higher compared to an average of ₹64,715/KL during FY20, albeit a fall of 18% compared to ₹121,013 /KL in FY23. Fuel accounts for 30-40% of the airlines' expenses, while 35-50% of the airlines' operating expenses.

industry sees better pricing power

ICRA noted the industry witnessed a better pricing power, as reflected in improved yields and thus the revenue per available seat kilometre – cost per available seat kilometre (RASK-CASK) spread of the airlines. The pricing power is expected to continue with a YoY fall in ATF prices since April 2023 (notwithstanding recent uptick) and relatively stable foreign exchange rates

New premium income of life insurance industry falls 18% to ₹26,789 cr in Aug

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ Mumbai

Life Insurance

LIFE insurance industry posted an 18% year-on-year fall in new business premium to ₹26,789 crore in August, according to data released by the Life Insurance Council on Thursday.

The industry performance was impacted by disappointing monthly performance by Life Insurance Corporation of India (LIC) as it reported the steepest fall in premium.

The new business premium of country's largest insurer declined nearly 35%. However, its annualised premium equivalent (APE) increased marginally by 3% in August.

Reacting to monthly performance, shares of LIC fell 2% during the session and settled 0.29% lower at ₹676 apiece on the Bombay Stock Exchange.

Private insurers managed to post a positive performance during the month. The new business premium of private insurers grew 14% to ₹12,496 crore in August. Private insurer HDFC Life Insurance reported nearly 25% in its new business premium while its APE grew by 16% during the month. SBI Life Insurance posted nearly 16% increase in its new business premium and its annualised premium equivalent surged by 34%. ICICI Prudential experienced a decrease in new business premiums by 5.4%, however its APE increased by 12.3%. Max Life Insurance reported a growth of 35.6% in new business premiums in August.

The non- life insurers also witnessed fall in their revenues in August. The gross premium underwritten by non-life insurers fell 3.7 percent year-on-year to ₹23,558 crore in August, according to data released by the General Insurance Council. The monthly performance was impacted mainly due to a 68% decline in the specialised state-run non-life insurers' revenue.

The revenue of general insurers, which offer insurance for home, travel, motor, health, fire, and other natural or man-made calamities, increased 13 % over the preceding year to ₹19,291 crore in August.

Among general insurers, private insurers outperformed the public sector, with their revenue growing 16% over last August. The revenue of public-sector insurers increased 7% year-on-year.

Food delivery platform Swiggy witnesses yet another high-level exit

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU
@ Bengaluru

FOOD delivery company Swiggy has been witnessing many senior-level exits in recent months, and the recent one is Anuj Rathi, the senior vice president of revenue and growth, who resigned after a stint of over seven years at the company.

"After a career-defining journey of 7 years with Swiggy, I've decided to hang up my boots here. It's been an amazing ride and I couldn't be luckier to work with some of the best individuals to deliver convenience to Indians," he said in a LinkedIn post.

"When I started here, Swiggy was a 2-year-old startup - operating in a few cities and learning to deliver in a hockey-stick growth environment. Every month and every year has been a new challenge and a new learning opportunity for me professionally and personally," he added.

Earlier in May, Ashish Lingamneni, vice president, marketing, and Nishad Kenkre, VP revenue and growth, left the company. Kenkre in a LinkedIn post had said that he decided to step away from his current role to take a break, recharge and reflect.

Swiggy, which announced turning EBITDA positive in its food delivery business as of March 2023 successfully integrated Dineout and strengthened its position in Q-commerce with Instamart. In July, it announced the second milestone in its two-year ESOP liquidity Program. As part of this planned 2-year ESOP liquidity program, Swiggy employees will have the option to receive liquidity totalling up to $50 million against their ESOPs, the food delivery company had said.

It recently acquired LYNK Logistics, and with this acquisition, Swiggy has entered the food and grocery retail market.

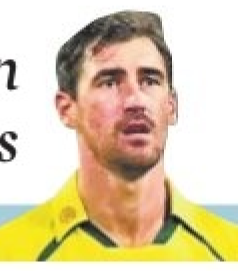
Starc eyes IPL return after eight years



Australian pacer Mitchell Starc is likely to feature in the IPL for the first time since 2015 after deciding to put his name in the auction ahead of the 2024 edition. Starc feels an IPL stint before the T20 World Cup in June next year makes sense. “Look it's been eight years. I'm definitely going back in (next) year,” Starc told the ‘Willow Talk’ cricket podcast.

ISL ignores AIFF request, season opener to clash with Asian Games

VISHNU PRASAD @ Bengaluru

THE calendar for the upcoming Indian Super League season was announced on Thursday. The first match will be played on September 21, on the same day that the Indian team will line up against Bangladesh for their second match of the Asian Games at Hangzhou, China.

“The 10th season of the Indian Super League kicks off on September 21 at the Jawaharlal Nehru Stadium, Kochi, with a blockbuster clash between rivals Kerala Blasters FC and Bengaluru FC,” said a press release issued by the ISL. The announcement confirmed what, despite repeated assurances that the season would be postponed, seemed inevitable.

This has brought the debate between country and club to the fore once again. The squad that Indian coach Igor Stimac initially announced had multiple players from many clubs. Bengaluru FC, who take on Kerala Blasters in the season opener, have six players in the squad, including captain Sunil Chhetri and goalkeeper Gurpreet Singh Sandhu. Mumbai City FC have three. With India’s participation at the Asian Games uncertain until very late, these clubs had just over a month to deal with the situation. Something that has not gone down well with the clubs.

Even the sports ministry and the Sports Authority of India are not amused. Ever since the All India Football Federation showed interest in participating at the Asian Games, there have been multiple issues that had been cropping up. The sports ministry and the SAI have had discussions with the AIFF who have assured that the best players will be available for the Asian Games. The Sports Ministry had mandated that only teams that are top eight in Asia can participate in Games. The Blue Tigers, eighteenth in Asia, was nowhere near this benchmark and had not participated in the last edition as well. In the end, after much hue and cry, the ministry ended up giving the football team a relaxation from its eligibility criteria.

The development further complicates an already convoluted scenario. Statements coming from the AIFF’s side in recent days have clearly placed the onus on the league. The league’s announcement of the fixtures comes just hours after AIFF president Kalyan Chaubey, who is also the IOA joint secretary and acting CEO, stated in media that he would request the league to postpone the fixtures by ten days, keeping in mind national interest. It would seem that the league, by announcing the fixtures right on the heels of this statement, has completely rejected Chaubey’s suggestion.

This doesn’t augur well for the AIFF. The Sports Authority of India had been assured that the best team would participate at the Games. Even if clubs agree to a compromise formula of sending two players each from every club, it will not be anywhere near the team that national team coach Igor Stimac would have hoped to pick. SAI sources reiterated that AIFF had promised that they would get relaxation from ISL clubs and get the best team. “We had an in-depth discussion with AIFF on this, prior to the recommendation,” informed SAI. The SAI also had discussions with the coach Igor Stimac who expressed confidence that the team would do their best.

India play their first match of the Asian games in just 12 days. If things are to be resolved, it would have to be done fast. The next couple of days will reveal if Indian football can dig itself out of this mess.

All-rounder Thakur sweats out in nets during an optional training session on Thursday

In search of batting depth

FIROZ MIRZA
Express @ Asia Cup
COLOMBO

DURING the optional training session at the Gamini Dissanayake Indoor Cricket Nets, Nondescripts Cricket Club in Colombo on Thursday, head coach Rahul Dravid, along with a throwdown specialist D Raghavendra, was throwing balls at Shardul Thakur with a lot of intensity.

Thakur was even dished out some toe crushers with one particular delivery from the coach hitting him on the foot. The Mumbai cricketer was the lone bowler in the group having a batting session with others being specialised batters like Shubhman Gill, Shreyas Iyer, KL Rahul, Suryakumar Yadav or batting all-rounder Hardik Pandya. The session was optional and held indoors due to rain with several players including captain Rohit Sharma and Virat Kohli preferring to skip it. None of the bowlers attended the session. Except, Thakur.

Even as he primarily operates as a strike bowler with a responsibility to break partnerships and scalp wickets in the middle overs, he was at the nets taking throwdowns to sharpen his batting skills. Reason seems pretty clear as the India skipper had stated while announcing the ODI World Cup squad a few days back. “It’s both, bowling depth and batting depth. We need to create that depth and we found that it was lacking in our team for the last few years. When we talk about depth in batting, that No.9, No.8 positions become very crucial. In the first game here we saw that we fell short in the backend. We want tailenders to contribute too. Another 10-15 runs in that game would have made a difference, that is the margin between winning and losing. We have spoken to them and told them to don that role too in the WC,” he had said on Tuesday.

It was India’s match against Pakistan that Rohit was talking about. After they were reduced to 66/4 inside 15 overs, wicketkeeper-batter Ishan Kishan and Hardik added 138 runs for the fifth wicket to help the team cross 200-run mark. However, once they departed India bundled out in no time. Hardik got out in 43.1 overs when India were 239/6. The last four batters after him could add only 27 to the team’s total as Rohit and Co were bowled out for 266 in 48.5 overs. Thakur came at No 8 in the match and could score only three runs off three deliveries.

Shardul Thakur (R) at a practice session at the Nondescripts Cricket Club | AFP

RECORD AT NO. 8-11 SINCE JAN 2021

Name	Mat	Runs	HS	Avg	SR
Shardul	22	160	50*	14.5	105.96
Kuldeep	11	50	10*	8.33	49.5
Bumrah	6	44	16	22	75.86
Shami	12	43	23	14.33	95.55
Siraj	25	31	9	6.2	47.69
Axar	1	29	29*	–	100

As Rohit mentioned, a few more runs from the lower order could have propelled India closer to 300-mark making the target a formidable one. This is where Thakur’s role becomes important. And it appears, the team management has apprised Thakur of what is being expected from him ahead of the World Cup which is why the medium-pacer has featured in every ODI series except for Sri Lanka at home since August last year. He was the highest wicket-taker with eight scalps in the three-match ODI series which India won against West Indies last month. His economy was 5.31 while the average was 11.62 in the series. Thakur also spoke about his role after the series victory in the Caribbean. “If you look in the last few years we tend to play with a deep batting line-up, so as an all-rounder who bats lower down the order, my job also becomes important. Whenever I get an opportunity I try to contribute to the team’s success whether it’s with bat, ball or in fielding. At the end of the day I should be happy that I have made an effort, my performances should be impactful,” he had said.

With the team scheduled to have a full practice session at the R Premadasa Stadium on Friday evening, Thakur once again could be seen at the nets both batting and bowling in his bid to lend balance to the team by not only being a wicket-taking bowler but a useful lower-middle-order batter.

Amidst heavy rain, India train indoors as Rahul resumes practice

FIROZ MIRZA @ Colombo

EVEN as a few India players trained at the Gamini Dissanayake Indoor Cricket Nets, Nondescripts Cricket Club during the optional training session, it was pouring outside in Colombo on Thursday. The weather forecast said 100 per cent chances of rain during the day and it came true. Despite the heavy rain, India players managed to train but what’s more worrisome is the fact that the forecast remains the same for next one week with chances of precipitation ranging from 67 per cent to 95 per cent.

As many as five Super Four stage matches have to be played in Colombo with India playing on September 10, 12 and 15 against Pakistan, Sri Lanka and Bangladesh, respectively. The chances of precipitation on these days are 95, 84 and 60 per cent. “Like India, Sri Lanka also witnesses southwest monsoon from May to September. So it’s not new that Colombo is witnessing rain. As the month will conclude, the rain will subside,” a Sri Lanka Cricket official told this daily. “We were more than happy when the Asian Cricket Council (ACC) gave us an opportunity to co-host the tournament but I must say the timing is not good. One match has already been washed out due to rain and if more games meet the same fate, then it will affect the credibility of the SLC,” added the official.

There is a one-day gap between the India-Pakistan match, Sri Lanka-India match and Sri Lanka-Pakistan match.

Similarly, there is a two-day gap between the last Super Four match and final, which is scheduled on September 17. While the ACC has kept a reserve day for the final, it has not officially announced reserve days for other matches. A BCCI source, however, claimed that the second clash between the arch-rivals on September 10 could also be played the next day, which is a rest day, if rain affects the game.

Given the forecast, the Indian team management must have decided to hold an indoor training session. With the facility having four practice wickets, India players including Shubman Gill, Shreyas Iyer, KL Rahul, Hardik Pandya, Suryakumar Yadav and Shardul Thakur took turns to bat. With Shaheen Shah Afridi claiming two early wickets in their first match, the India batters faced throwdowns simulating left-arm pacers. Head coach Rahul Dravid, batting coach Vikram Rathour and other throwdown specialists switched nets to cater to the needs of the batters.

All eyes were on Rahul, who joined the team only after the group stage, as he batted in the nets alongside Iyer. The focus was countering the challenges especially posed by the left-arm pacers. The Karnataka batter looked good in the nets as he was moving his feet well and playing his favourite shots to perfection. Rahul last played for India back on March 22 in Chennai, scoring 32 off 50 in a losing cause against Australia in an ODI. He then tore a tendon in his right leg during an IPL match in May and had to undergo surgery. The right-hand batter underwent an extensive rehabilitation at the National Cricket Academy (NCA) before being included in the Asia Cup squad. A few days after being included, he was ruled out of the first two matches due to a fresh niggle.

Notably, the Indian players last trained at nets in Sri Lanka on September 1 on the eve of their Asia Cup opener against Pakistan. They had preferred not to train ahead of their clash against Nepal on September 4. So the optional net session was also their first in almost a week. With 75 per cent chances of precipitation on Friday, the Indian team may once again prefer to train indoors. Pakistan, Sri Lanka and Bangladesh are also reaching Colombo on Thursday evening. They too will start training from Friday, especially the last two as they will face each other on Saturday.

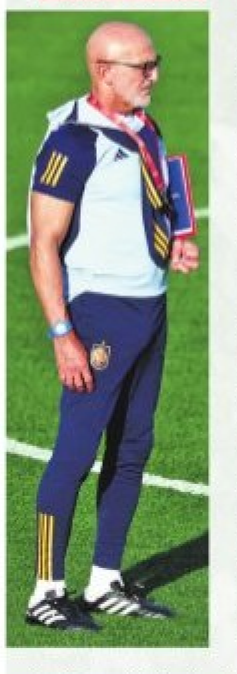
“IF YOU LIKE ME, YOU DON’T HAVE TO HATE MESSI”

With Cristiano Ronaldo reflecting on his rivalry with Lionel Messi ahead of the UEFA European Championship qualifying, a look at what’s happening on Friday...

Cristiano Ronaldo has been in reflective mood as he brings up 20 years in Portugal’s national team, saying he and great rival Lionel Messi ‘changed the history of soccer’ and that he still wants to raise the bar at the age of 38. Ronaldo’s debut for Portugal was in August 2003 and two decades later the most prolific scorer in men’s internationals ‘with 123 goals in a record 200 games’ will be playing for the team in a European Championship qualifier at Slovakia. “I am proud of the numbers I reached. But, I want more,” Ronaldo said. “When I play, the bar has to be up here, I want to think big.” On his rivalry with Messi, Ronaldo added: “If you like Cristiano Ronaldo, you don’t have to hate Messi. We are both very good. We changed the history of soccer. We are respected all over the world. That is the most important thing. He has marked his path, I have marked mine.” Portugal have won all four of their group games and are two points ahead of second-place Slovakia. Elsewhere, Bosnia-Herzegovina host Liechtenstein and Iceland visit Luxembourg.

GROUP J

GROUP A



Spain visit Georgia needing to keep in touch with group leader Scotland, who will play at Cyprus. Spain will play their first match since the president of the Spanish soccer federation was suspended by FIFA for his conduct at the FIFA Women's World Cup final where he kissed a player without her consent. Spain men's coach Luis de la Fuente has apologized for the support he showed for federation chief Luis Rubiales during a speech he gave two weeks ago that included the claim he was a victim of a ‘witch hunt’ by ‘false feminists.’ De la Fuente has since condemned Rubiales' acts and words. In Group A, Spain have three points from two games played, while Scotland leads with 12 points after winning all four of their matches. Spain is behind in the number of games played because they participated in and won the UEFA Nations League finals in June.

GROUP D

It has been a disrupted start to qualifying for Croatia after a surprise draw against Wales and a win against current group leader Turkey in their opening two games in Group D. The country's involvement in the Nations League in June means they are playing catch up, having only played two qualifying games, compared to Turkey's four. Croatia host Latvia on Friday and can move up to second in the standings dependent on the result between the top two, Turkey and Armenia. Croatia were a bronze medalist at the FIFA World Cup in Qatar last year.

Pragg ends joint-third in Tata Steel Chess India

AGENCIES @ Kolkata

INDIA’S chess sensation R Praggnanandhaa finished third but former World Blitz champion Maxime Vachier-Lagrave continued his dominance with two more wins to claim the ‘Tata Steel Chess India 2023’ rapid title, here on Thursday.

The Frenchman, who was on his maiden visit to India, finished on top with seven points, way ahead of Azerbaijan’s 2019 World Cup winner Teimour Radjabov (5.5). Praggnanandhaa finished third along with Vidit Gujrathi and Alexander Grischuk with five points apiece. The World Cup runner-up Praggnanandhaa secured two wins, but suffered a loss against India No 1 D Gukesh in the most-anticipated battle of the meet.

Praggnanandhaa won a quality game against Gujrathi when the 18-year-old responded well to Gujrathi’s initial attack, securing a pleasant position in the middlegame. In a fairly equal endgame, Praggnanandhaa capitalised on the chance to attack the king, delivering checkmate on move 38. In the most awaited contest of the tournament, Gukesh took on Praggnanandhaa in the penultimate round. Gukesh earned the bragging rights as he overcame the World Cup runner up in a sharp game.

Alcaraz overpowers Zverev in straight sets

AFP @ New York

CARLOS Alcaraz powered into the semifinals of the US Open on Wednesday as rival Daniil Medvedev battled through a brutal heatwave to join the Spaniard in the last four.

Defending champion Alcaraz moved to within one win of a potential dream final with Novak Djokovic with an emphatic straight sets victory over German 12th Alexander Zverev.

Zverev had emerged as a dark horse after a marathon five-set win over Italy’s sixth seed Jannik Sinner on Monday. But the German’s hopes of extending his stay in New York were obliterated by a devastatingly clinical performance from Alcaraz, who completed a 6-3, 6-2, 6-4 win in 2hr 30min on the Arthur Ashe Stadium court. The victory leaves the 20-year-old Alcaraz firmly on course for another final showdown with Djokovic.

Djokovic faces unseeded American Ben Shelton in Friday’s other semifinal. “I’m feeling really comfortable playing on this court, playing in New York,” said Alcaraz, who will face Russian third seed Medvedev in the semi-finals on Friday. Medvedev had earlier secured his place in the semifinals with a 6-4, 6-3, 6-4 victory over compatriot Andrey Rublev.

Heartbreak in tie-break for India vs Iraq

EXPRESS NEW SERVICE @ Bengaluru

IT may have turned bitter towards the end, but no Indian football fan will have switched off their television on Thursday without a bit of hope in their hearts. On paper, India versus 70th-ranked Iraq, conquerors of both Saudi Arabia and Qatar in the recent Arabian Gulf Cup, is a mismatch. But in their Kings Cup match at the 700th Anniversary Stadium in Chiang Mai, Thailand, the Blue Tigers led for most of the ninety minutes, before tasting defeat on penalties.

If there were question marks over a Sunil Chhetri-less India’s ability to find the net, those were put to rest in just sixteen minutes. A smart move initiated by Sahal Abdul Samad was finished off by Naorem Mahesh Singh. The lead lasted just twelve minutes though as Iraq equalised through an Ali Al-Hamadi penalty after a handball inside the penalty box by Sandesh Jhingan.

A lesser team would have lost their heads at this point, but India kept theirs, calmly absorbing the Iraqi pressure while unleashing counter-attacks of their own whenever the opportunity arose. That paid off nine minutes into the second half as Iraqi keeper Jalal Hassan diverted a cross by Akash Mishra into his own net.

India were just minutes away from a famous victory but Jhingan again gave away a penalty with just ten minutes left on the clock, bringing down Aymen Hussein inside the box.

Huawei's Mate 60 Pro shows China has come a long way in chipmaking

VAITHEESWARAN B @ Chennai

HUAWEI'S latest smartphone Mate 60 Pro has raised concerns that China may have circumvented sanctions by the United States and made rapid progress in advanced chipmaking. The smartphone comes with 12 GB RAM with storage options ranging from 256 GB to 1 TB.

It is powered by Huawei's HarmonyOS 4.0. However, the company didn't reveal the chipset it has used.

The firm released its latest device recently without any major event or a fanfare. It is interesting to note that the device has not been introduced to customers outside the country.

It is believed that Mate 60 Pro uses 7-nanometre processor; Kirin 9000s chip fabricated by Semiconductor Manufacturing International Corp (SMIC).

Both SMIC as well as Huawei were sanctioned by the United States in 2019 over alleged spying links and national security concerns.

However, Huawei has made a significant progress despite the sanctions has raised eyebrows.

The US administration wanted to prevent China from getting 14-nanometre chips, pushing the country at least six years behind in semiconductor fabrication.

For context, Apple's upcoming iPhone 15 is expected to be powered by 3-nanometre processors while India is trying to make 28-nanometre chips or higher.

The US bid to restrict China's technological advancements to curb its headway in artificial intelligence is at the heart of the recent tensions between the two countries. According to the Chinese state media, Huawei's new product launch is a sign that the country has broken US sanctions.

However, analysts say the chips could have been stockpiled before 2019 or sanctions could have been violated.

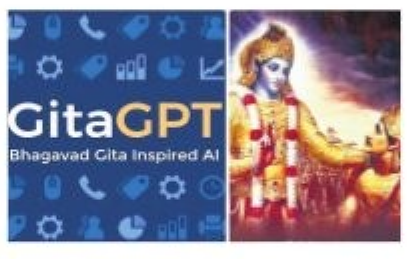
INDIA TO SHOWCASE DIGITAL INFRASTRUCTURE AT G20 SUMMIT

RAKESH KUMAR @ New Delhi

India will welcome delegates to the G20 Summit by showcasing its digital capabilities—digital public infrastructure (DPI) including Aadhaar, UPI, DigiLocker, DIKSHA, Bhashini, Open Network for Digital Commerce (ONDC), and eSanjeevani, which facilitates quick access to doctors from the smartphones. The main attraction of the digital pavilion will be a kiosk featuring the GITA (Guidance Inspiration Transformation and Action) application. This application is designed with chatbot-like features that will provide answers related to life and principles in alignment with the holy book Bhagavad Gita. Here are some of the digital attractions the G20 delegates are set to witness.



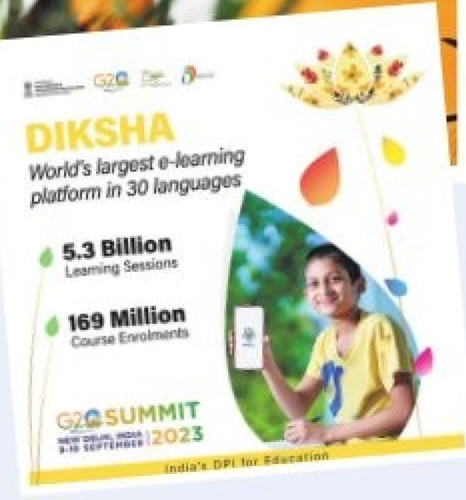
Ask GITA

The GITA app introduces a unique feature known as Ask GITA, which offers insightful answers to questions aligned with the teachings of the Bhagavad Gita.

This feature is powered by advanced GPT-4 language model technology, enabling it to provide responses based on the sacred text, both in English and Hindi. A visitor can ask a question and GITA responds in accordance with the principles of the Bhagavad Gita, providing insights and relevant quotes from the holy book.

Bhashini Booth

The Bhashini Booth offers an impressive language translation service for delegates. While the Bhashini platform supports various Indian languages, it has been specially integrated with international languages for the G20 Summit. Visitors to the booth will have the opportunity to engage in conversations with the platform and obtain information related to tourism, the G20 Summit, or any other topic. This feature enhances the accessibility and convenience for delegates seeking to communicate in their preferred language, further promoting a seamless and informative experience.



Digital India

India will also introduce the G20 delegates to several other key digital initiatives that have played a pivotal role in shaping the nation's digital landscape. Visitors will have the opportunity to explore how these integral components of India's digital infrastructure have collectively contributed to the nation's transformation into Digital India. The vision of Digital India Programme is to transform the country into a digitally empowered society as well as a knowledge economy.

A stationary cycle

A unique feature at the booth is a stationary cycle that offers visitors a glimpse into India's digital transformation journey. By peddling this cycle, visitors embark on an immersive visual representation of India's digital evolution like Aadhaar, UPI, DigiLocker, and others. The Union Information and Broadcasting Ministry showcased this feature in a video, describing it as a "cycle-run virtual reality simulated exhibit."

In this interactive setup, visitors engage with a stationary bicycle, similar to those found in gyms. As the user starts peddling, sensor-based technology detects the motion, triggering a captivating virtual tour of a digital landscape. At each milestone, users gain access to information about the initiative, including the progress achieved by the programme.

Apollo taps cloud for telemedicine

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Chennai

APOLLO Hospitals is strengthening its telemedicine platform Apollo 24/7 by tapping the cloud, data intelligence, and artificial intelligence, among a host of other technologies. It is expanding its partnership with Google Cloud to develop various features including AI-based assistive technology for physicians.

The partnership aims to develop an AI-powered clinical decision support system called Clinical Intelligence Engine (CIE). Based on Google Cloud's Vertex AI and generative AI (gen AI) models, this will enable doctors to identify the next best action for patients during consultations. The CIE service leverages data from Apollo Hospitals and large language models (LLMs) from Google Cloud to create a solution, the hospital said, adding that the patients' privacy will be protected.

The CIE platform aims to develop 'AskApollo', a patient-facing service. Apollo Hospitals is also exploring the use of Med-PaLM 2, a large language model developed by Google that can answer medical questions and generate clinical text summaries. Apollo hopes to improve access to healthcare and penetrate into rural areas as 80% of the doctors live in urban areas.

Apollo 24/7 has extensive plans for the cloud, having deployed seven engineering teams to develop 78 microservices and more than 40 databases on Google Cloud. The Apollo 24/7 data lake, built on Google BigQuery, also focuses on better decision making and clinical outcomes. Apollo is creating a large trough of healthcare data on Google search.

Apollo's expertise in data and hospital networks will help shape a new era of precision and empathy in clinical decision making with medical grade generative AI, says Shobana Kamineni, vice-chairperson of Apollo Hospitals.

INTERVIEW
SANJAY BINYALA

'There is a thin line between AI and gen AI'

UMA KANNAN @ Bengaluru

Generative artificial intelligence (AI) is the new buzzword in the technology space. It creates new content including text, images, audio, and video. But Generative AI should not be confused with AI, which goes much broader and deeper, says Sanjay Binyala, executive vice-president, global DCX practice—India head, Capgemini. In an interaction with TNIE, he speaks about the DCX Foundry, which focuses on experience-led design to deliver customer experience. Excerpts:

● When was DCX Foundry formed?

We started DCX as a practice in 2014, when not many believed it was possible to deliver customer experience remotely. It has been a great journey and we have been scaling up since then. Today, DCX Foundry presents a diverse range of assets, solutions, and accelerators covering various domains including marketing, sales, service, and commerce.

● What kind of response are you getting from clients, especially post-Covid?

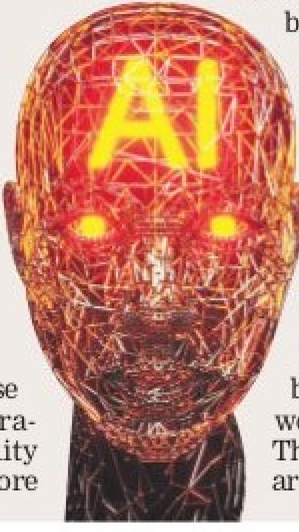
Initially, there were very high expectations but now clients are looking at what will immediately give them value and what would be the most pertinent area of investment. People are open to diversifying from Business A to Business B.

● What are the future use cases?

In future, the leverage of existing use cases will increase. The younger generation is already into it (augmented reality and virtual reality). 5G is becoming more popular and secondly, the evolution of hardware is spectacular. Right now, they are bulky pieces but they will become simpler in future. We are working across sectors and many are seeing the potential of the metaverse.

When it comes to security, the No 1 rule is to ensure we are absolutely transparent in terms of what we are doing. Also, we are partnering and giving inputs to the larger ecosystem. Cybersecurity is not new for generative AI. We have to ensure that the new tools, technologies and databases that we look into are governed by the right guardrails. Basically, those are the filters that ensure that data do not go outside.

● Will automation reduce job opportunities?



Technologies will undergo changes. For instance, in the case of a developer, one will now be focusing more on quality like how can one make it more efficient instead of just programming. The focus will move from basic code generation and I see a huge opportunity here as one can scale up to other business aspects also.

We need to educate people about the nuances of AI as this technology is opening up new avenues for people to take up new roles. We, along with our partners, are investing to set the right expectation when a right use case needs to be decided as there is a thin line between AI and gen AI, and we should not mix the two. That awareness is what we are bringing to our clients.

Google fiat on AI-generated synthetic content for adverts

Google has made it mandatory for political adverts to disclose images and audio generated or altered AI tools, along with who paid for them. The new policy will kick in from next month. "Given the growing prevalence of tools that produce synthetic content, we're expanding our policies a step further to require advertisers to disclose when their election ads include material that's been digitally altered or generated," a Google spokesperson said. Still, small editing like resizing images, minor cleanup to the background will still be allowed. Those that depict people or things doing stuff that they never actually did or those that otherwise alter actual footage will be flagged. Those ads that do utilise AI aspects will need to label them as such in a "clear and conspicuous" manner that is easily seen by the user, as per the Google policy. The ads will be moderated first through Google's automated screening systems and then reviewed by a human as needed.

EU checks power of six tech giants with Digital Markets Act

The European Union has regulated an important area in the internet-digital marketplace. The 27-member bloc is trying to check the power of 'gatekeepers' to promote competition. The EU has named six tech giants—Alphabet, Amazon, Apple, ByteDance, Meta and Microsoft and plans to reign in their power to promote competition. The Act aims to stop big tech players from requiring users to make use of their own services, gatekeeping app stores, stopping users from uninstalling gatekeeper preloads, providing interoperability, and tracking and profiling users for ad targeting without their consent. A total of 22 platforms are under the Act, which includes TikTok, Facebook, Instagram, LinkedIn, Google Maps, Google Play, Google Shopping, Amazon Marketplace, iOS App Store, Meta Marketplace, Chrome, Safari browsers, Google Android, iOS, Windows PC OS, two N-IICS, WhatsApp, Facebook Messenger, search engine Google, and YouTube.

As Google turns 25, Pichai hails AI as biggest technological shift

AI will be the biggest technological shift we see in our lifetimes, Google CEO Sundar Pichai said in a memo to its employees as the company celebrates its 25th anniversary. "It's bigger than the shift from desktop computing to mobile, and it may be bigger than the internet itself. It's a fundamental rewiring of technology and an incredible accelerant of human ingenuity," Pichai said. He reiterated the areas where AI can provide value like flood forecasting to AlphaFold database, which covers 200 million predictions of protein structures, helping with advances to cut plastic pollution, tackle antibiotic resistance, fight malaria and fight climate change. "Our search for answers will drive extraordinary technological progress over the next 25 years. And in 2048, if, somewhere in the world, a teenager looks at all we've built with AI and shrugs, we'll know we succeeded. And then we'll get back to work," Pichai said.
